This is a short but devastating takedown of the usefulness of masks and should be required reading for every politician in the country. They should have to rebut every point in the book before they can implement a mask mandate.

So we should dump a vaccine too unsafe for us to approve on poorer countries?

And I see public health advocates screaming for this.

Wow. Call it a vaccine and anything goes.

1/ Hey, investigative reporters: Okay. You want to write about the vaccines in a quote-unquote responsible way? You want to focus on systemic issues, not individual deaths? You don't want to be accused of being a blanket anti-vaxxer?

Fine. Here are three stories worth pursuing.

In a normal journalistic world, the best investigative reporters would be at each other's throats for the chance to work these stories. Unfortunately we left a normal journalistic world in about 2016, and in the last year we've been in the twilight zone.

It's not. ~75% of the country under 50 hasn't had even one dose. If that's where the worst side effects are and the risk-benefit profile makes the least sense, there is time to figure out what's happening and make reasonable recommendations.

Almost 1 in 10 people who receive the first dose of an mRNA vaccine don't take the second. Because they enjoyed the first dose so much they're just waiting for a special occasion for the second, I guess.

Look, I don't want to turn on the firehose on this guy's family at a very difficult time, so I didn't want to go into this. But this person publicly reported being vaccinated; six days later his tweets abruptly stopped and less than a week that after his death was reported.

Given that the media and blue-checks spent 2020 desperately looking for young people who have died of #Covid - to the extent of reporting on the fictitious deaths of doctors - the sudden reluctance to ask any questions about real post-vaccine deaths is...

And, sorry, folks, at a time when every other television and radio ad is encouraging people to get the vaccine, not to discuss potential cases of post-vaccine side effects is to betray the public health.

A well sourced booklet
This is a short but devastating takedown of the usefulness of masks and should be required reading for every politician in the country. They should have to rebut every point in the book before they can implement a mask mandate.

Hey, reporters: Would you take everything the Pentagon says on faith? Would you cheerlead for the Ferguson PD?

So why do you dance to the tune of @cdcgov, or fail to ask hard questions of @pfizer?

You've become propagandists, not journalists.

It's not too late to wake up.

Thankfully, we can be sure the mRNA vaccines cannot cause diabetic ketoacidosis, so any deaths from it following vaccination must be unrelated -

Oh.

Pretending we fully understand the safety profile of these vaccines is as foolish as pretending that #Covid is never dangerous.

This is not even a close call. If you are a public figure and vaccine advocate, and you announce publicly you've been vaccinated, and you suddenly die less than two weeks later, your death is news. It should be, anyway.

A Florida woman who allegedly ran over and killed a federal judge Friday before telling police she was Harry Potter supposedly used bath salts; turns out they may not have been the only psychomimetic drug in her arsenal.

Cannabis, psychosis, and driving deaths, a love story.

Hit-run crash in Boca kills NY federal judge; driver tells medics she's 'Harry Potter'

HANNAH MORSE | PALM BEACH POST | 1 hour ago

Nastasia Snape was driving a red two-door sedan "erratically" near the intersection of North Ocean Boulevard just north of Spanish River Park on Friday morning when she went around stopped traffic and onto the sidewalk, hitting 75-year-old Judge Sandra Feuerstein of Long Island, Boca Raton Police said.

When Snape was placed in an ambulance, she "began to scream and fight with medics stating that she was 'Harry Potter,'" the police report said, referring to the fictional wizard book series by J.K. Rowling. A prominent character in the books is named Snape.

An officer interviewing Snape said that she remembered being in a crash, but when asked when the crash happened, she said, "I wasn't in a crash."

When officials looked for Snape's ID at the emergency room, they found none.

Yet another reason VAERS isn't capturing all events: the early vaccinated cohort (especially in the young) is definitionally the opposite of vaccine hesitant and may be reluctant to report them.

A misguided sense of solidarity, I guess.

When you hear the panic porn from India, remember:

1) A month ago it was Brazil. The Brazilian variant, overrun hospitals, eekamouse! Since then cases are down 30%, deaths 20%.

2) India has had 1/12 the deaths per capita as the US. Some reversion to the mean was sadly likely...

Alex Berenson
@AlexBerenson

3) India is has terrible income inequality, desperate poverty, and semi-functional public hospitals at the best of times.

4) MOST IMPORTANTLY: this is all a distraction from three straight months of very good news in the US.

I thought this was a myth, but no: the government will pay up to $9,000 for a funeral for someone who dies of #Covid. Which is $9,000 more than it will pay for the funeral of anyone else.

That's not an incentive to report a death as Covid-related AT ALL.

Umm okay.

Btw that @cdcgov study last week supposedly showing the mRNA vaccines are safe for pregnant women was garbage (as some people at CDC clearly understand, thus today's walkback). Not even hot garbage. Cold garbage. I promise I'll explain why later today.

> BREAKING

> The CDC is walking back its director's statement that the agency recommends pregnant people get the COVID-19 vaccine.
> The CDC tells CBS News that the agency's recommendations have not changed, despite the directors comments.

Was on the 6 train on Saturday. Surprisingly crowded. As the city comes back, the subway will too - people who have to take it have to take it. It is by far the cheapest way to get around, and much of the time the best. The Karens never liked it anyway.

This is a short but devastating takedown of the usefulness of masks and should be required reading for every politician in the country. They should have to rebut every point in the book before they can implement a mask mandate.

Correct. The ro is no longer an emergency in Tennessee. Nor Florida. Nor New York. Nor California. Nor anywhere from sea to shining sea. #Covid patients occupy under 5 percent of hospital beds nationally.

So why have the vaccines been given an Emergency Use Authorization?

Thanks for the tip. Any chance you can point me to studies on the background incidence of this, whether it can be drug-induced, and whether it is more about hormones or broader clotting issue?

Cause it seems to be happening a lot post-vaccine.

Honestly this seems like a very solid piece with lots of good advice - right up to the point where you blithely dismiss the possibility the phenomenon might be vaccine-related. As a reader wrote:

O Canada! Canadian physicians - including Canada's first chief public health officer - have just called for ending lockdowns permanently, even if outbreaks continue. "Adults need to go to work. Family and friends need to meet." Read the letter yourself at balancedresponse.ca.

A Balanced Response

COVID-19 is a serious threat to the health and well-being of Canadians. The measures that have been taken to control the spread of disease also represent a serious threat. Both the disease and the control measures have had serious consequences for population health and equity. We believe that a balanced response is required as COVID-19 is a serious public health threat and will remain so until we have a universally available safe and effective vaccine or similar medical treatment. There have been many deaths due to COVID-19 and every single one represents a tragic outcome. However, in overall population health terms COVID-19's direct impact on premature mortality is small. While those under the age of 60 account for Measures for COVID-19 control need to accommodate these health determinants. Children need to go to interact with their peers at child care, schools, sports and social activities, and summer camps. Adults need to go to work. Family and friends need to meet.

The societal costs of maintaining these public health measures, even with some gradual relaxation, are will lead to continued devastation of our society, to a new goal

Our new goal: Minimize the impact of COVID-19 using methods that are practical, effective and compatible with our values and sense of social justice. We need to focus on preventing deaths and serious illness by protecting the vulnerable while allowing society to function.

3/ So the fatality rates seem higher than they really are early on. Second, physicians increasingly agree that ventilators were overused early on in the epidemic and may have - unfortunately- increased the death rate. As physicians refine treatments and test drugs...

4/ The fatality rate should continue to drop. Overall, the fatality rate seems to be settling in the 0.25 to 0.4% range, with the average age of death roughly 80.

I wish you a speedy recovery. However, speculation about side effects like this are dangerous. Unless you are 100% sure that the vaccine caused a heart attack, you shouldn't be speculating and automatically singling out the vaccine.

1/ @PeterHotez is batshit. I'm not going to sugarcoat, I don't care how many titles he has, he's batshit.

On Jan. 31 he wrote African-Americans would face "historic decimation" if their vaccine hesitancy didn't change.

Spoiler alert: it didn't and they didn't.

Why do we care?

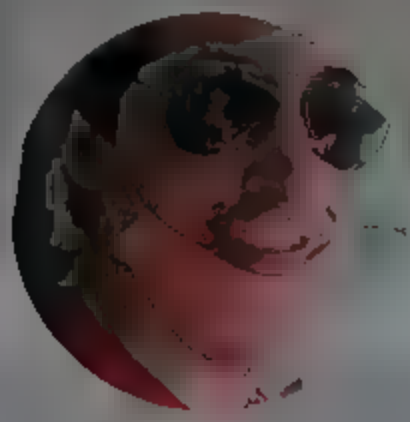
2/ Because on Tuesday he wrote a piece - in NATURE, maybe the world's top science journal - calling for "the United Nations and the highest levels of governments... to dismantle anti-vaccine groups."



How? By using "law enforcement," among other tactics.

But I care very much that @nature saw fit to run this.

A vaccine success story in two acts.

If it isn't obvious by now, one reason vaccines seem to be effective post-second dose is that they pull infections forward into the days after the first dose - and those infections, by order of the vaccine church, are not counted.

SVC students were the focus at a special vaccination clinic on campus on Wednesday, both administering and receiving the Pfizer COVID-19 vaccine provided through the College's partnership with Mainline Pharmacy.

Due to an increase in the number of positive COVID-19 cases on campus, a shelter-in-place mandate has been enacted for the Saint Vincent College campus community effective today at 3 p.m.

But wait, there's more! Certainly sounds as if @cdcgov plans to stop counting post-vaccine infections entirely. (If you don't "monitor" or "identify" which infections are post-vaccine, how do you report them?)

This page provides information and resources to help public health departments and laboratories investigate and report COVID-19 vaccine breakthrough cases.

- Vaccine breakthrough cases are expected. COVID-19 vaccines are effective and are a critical tool to bring the pandemic under control. However reported cases for clustering by patient demographics, geographic location, time since vaccination, vaccine type or lot number, and SARS-CoV-2 lineage.

To the fullest extent possible, respiratory specimens that test positive for SARS-CoV-2 RNA are collected for genomic sequencing to identify the virus lineage that caused the infection.

In the coming weeks, CDC will transition from monitoring all reported vaccine breakthrough cases to focus on identifying and investigating only vaccine breakthrough infections that result in

And so this is how the pandemia ends: not with a bang or a whimper, but with politicians falling all over each other to take credit for loosening the noose they tied.

Hey, remember the reopening metrics?

Neither does Governor Meatballs.

Two good questions. On the rising cases, I suspect some reversion to the mean - plus a rebound effect from the fact the lockdowns were harder there than almost anywhere else in the US.

As for the lockdowns, Inslee and Brown seem to be aggressively using them to push vaccines...

Except for Inslee and Brown shutting us down again for a "4th wave". Any ideas why Inslee and Brown are bucking the reopening trend? And why we are rising in cases which is so odd to me.

The Pacific Northwest has both increasingly leftist politics and a history of vaccine hesitancy. Maybe those two blades of the scissor are coming together? Also, those states don't get the nat'l media attention of CA or the East Coast, so their lockdowns have run under the radar.

From a radiologist. Seems physicians - who in the end care more about saving patients than the vaccine church - are starting to ask tough questions.

He's right about Haley Brinkmeyer, too. Coroner's report says DKA, two days after the vaccine. She was 28.

> radiologist and have seen three Covid cases in fully vaccinated patients since Monday. [redacted] posting the lowest daily new cases of the year so far, however. A change I've noticed this week is that the clinicians are now actually asking patients about recent vaccines and that info is showing up in patient notes and radiology histories. Docs are also waking up to the side effects with several requests for MRI to look for dural sinus thrombosis after JNJ shots.
> These three attached cases are in [redacted] male, [redacted] female, and [redacted] male who is intubated. All three sick enough to be admitted to hospital for Covid.
> Also, in regards to Haley Brinkmeyer (28 yo who died after mRNA shot in January), my local hometown paper in Indiana printed a corrected medical examiner's report - diabetic ketoacidosis. I found this interesting given your recent highlighting of his in the VAERS.

VAERS (the federal vaccine side effects database) has updated for the week.

Holy moly.

It's now at 118,000+ #covid vaccine reports. That's up 32,000 in a week - a 35% rise. Before Covid, VAERS got that many reports in a year.

Just how bad is the backlog?

A well sourced booklet
This is a short but devastating takedown of the usefulness of masks and should be required reading for every politician in the country. They should have to rebut every point in the book before they can implement a mask mandate.

Going back to Neil Ferguson's greatest hits: the best part of this prediction isn't just that it was completely wrong, it's that when Neil divided 1.8 billion (the 1918 population) into 6.5 billion (the 2005 population), his answer was... six!

He is a very special genius.

Most people who defend the fidelity of qPCR past a CT of 32 point to sequencing studies that don't sequence samples above 32.
Yet 'cases' are still quarantined under the banner of error free PCR.

You can't have it both ways.
Don't call positives you can't sequence verify.

Glen Pyle | #WearAMask @glenpyle · 24 min

Clearly you are not paying attention.

Alex said the CT was lowered to 28 to decrease the number of positive tests in vaccinated people.

The CT for sequencing remains unchanged at 28.

What you have posted ignores his error.

The only "way" I want it is to be correct.

This is a short but devastating takedown of the usefulness of masks and should be required reading for every politician in the country. They should have to rebut every point in the book before they can implement a mask mandate.

1/ Stunning chart. Outside the US and UK, the West had ~NO excess deaths last year in people under 65. And many of those US deaths were lockdown/drug related (as Canada's rise shows).

We turned the world upside down for a relative handful of people at the end of their lives...

2/ Also, what does this say about the risk/benefit of the vaccine in anyone under 65 (aside from the morbidly obese)?

IMO, the authors very subtlety suggest that the immune response developed when the immune systems confronts the whole virus as in natural infection, is more robust/complete than that elicited by a vaccine developed around the S protein

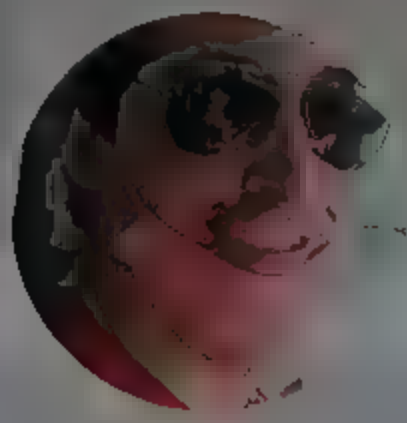
So researchers looked at 100 people who'd recovered from SARSCoV2 and found strong T-cell responses 6 months later - a sign of lasting immunity.

Then they looked to see if spike proteins (the ones the vaccines create) drove the response. You'll never believe what happened next!

cells were activated by non-S viral epitopes has implications for vaccination in populations that have experienced prior SARS-CoV-2 infections. To engage these non-S-reactive T cells that were established during infections, proteins besides S could be incorporated into vaccines; this could boost neutralizing and non-neutralizing antibody responses by eliciting a more robust CD4$^+$ T cell response and would engage a greater CD8$^+$ T cell response that had been



T cell responses probably play important roles in the control of SARS-CoV-2 infection, but they have been relatively understudied. Data now suggest that the majority of infected individuals develop robust and long-

If the proteins don't get exocytosed then how could an immune response be generated?

Luigi Warren @luigi_warren · 6 Min.
Proteins made inside the cell get diced up and fragments are presented on the surface of the cell in MHC complexes to facilitate immune surveillance. Also, assembled virions obviously do get out of the cell.

I would like a subject matter expert to weigh in but I believe the answer is trillions (billions of mRNA/LNP particles per dose * thousands of copies per sequence before they are degraded in the cell). Please correct me if I'm wrong.

It was a cheap joke. Followed up by this, when a second line about antifreeze got more attention.

Here's the thing: we have NO IDEA what's in those LNPs. I don't mean we don't know the chemicals. I mean we don't know how they'll interact with our bodies upon repeated dosing...

> 1/ Fact check: I don't know how smart I am, but true that I DON'T BELIEVE THERES ANTIFREEZE IN THE VAX! (Which is why I didn't say there was.)

VAERS now up to 3,486 post-Covid vaccine deaths - almost as many as have been reported for every other vaccine combined in the database's 30-year history.

Lucky us, EVERY SINGLE ONE WAS A COINCIDENCE!

Phew. I was starting to get worried.

> April 19, 2021. During this time, VAERS received 3,486 reports of death (0.0016%) among people who received a COVID-19 vaccine. CDC and FDA physicians review each case report of death as soon as notified and CDC requests medical records to further assess reports. A review of available clinical information including death certificates, autopsy, and medical records revealed no evidence that vaccination contributed to patient deaths. CDC and FDA will continue to investigate reports of adverse events, including deaths, reported to VAERS.

Almost five months after #Covid vaccinations begin, a mainstream media outlet finally covers the disaster that is side effect surveillance. Including this bit: we are NOT USING our best system, one that covers 60 million people with active records matching.

Gee, I wonder why.

Covid vaccine safety system has gaps that may miss unexpected side effects, experts say

Do people really not understand this? You aren't trading two days of side effects (and potentially far more severe adverse events) for a lifetime of protection. @pfizer is talking about boosters by the fall.

Fact check: yeppers. We report Covid hospitalizations almost to the second, and we could easily do the same with vaccines (in fact it would be EASIER since we don't need a test to know who has been vaccinated).

And the Danes show @jnjnews the door link to a rare but serious form of blood clot.

The move comes after the Nordic country last month stopped using AstraZeneca's vaccine altogether, citing similar concerns.

The country's health authority said in a statement it had found that "the benefits of using the Covid-19 vaccine from Johnson & Johnson do not outweigh the risk of causing the possible adverse effect in those who receive the vaccine".

Excluding the Johnson & Johnson vaccine, which accounts for about a third of Denmark's total contracted supplies of Covid-19 vaccines, would delay the country's vaccination calendar by up to four weeks, it said.

Sorry to bother you, but I am an independent journalist with a large following on Twitter (I also regularly appear on Fox News and will have a book out about Covid later this year). I have written extensively about the federal Vaccine Adverse Events Reporting System recently. I know GD administers the system for the CDC and is trying to hire data entry technicians and others to handle the flood of reports that have come in about the Covid vaccines.

I am hoping you might be able to help answer questions I have about how the system actually works - that is, if and how reports are checked for accuracy and truthfulness, if the system currently has a backlog and how large it is, how GD is trying to

As you can see, this is pure boilerplate...

FDA and CDC conduct on-going safety evaluation and surveillance through existing safety monitoring systems like VAERS, the Vaccine Safety Datalink (VSD) , and the Clinical Immunization Safety Assessment (CISA) Project, and new safety monitoring systems, like v-safe. This continued monitoring can detect rare adverse events that clinical trials did not detect. If an unexpected adverse event is seen, experts quickly assess whether it is a true safety concern. Both CDC and FDA have physicians and epidemiologists who closely monitor the safety data on COVID-19 vaccines using the systems mentioned above. Experts then decide whether changes are needed in U.S. vaccine

Today's mixology:

Take one freaked-out Italian doctor's Facebook post -
Add dubious Chinese videos -
Toss in some bad math from Professor Lockdown -

Stir and garnish with media hate for El Hombre Naranja -

And you got yourself a General Panic. Fizzy, with a bitter aftertaste.

From an Indian newspaper. Treat stories in US papers about the apocalypse there even more skeptically than usual.

1) It is likely that no one, not even the Indian government, knows the real numbers.

2) India is huge, 1.4 billion people, 4.5x the US, so the numbers scale fast...

Most importantly, the media is desperate for bad news to push the vaccines, and the numbers in the US are not cooperating. Thus: variants. Thus: younger people getting sicker (basically no evidence for this, which is why you never see numbers). And thus: India.

If you think the vaccine rollout has been, umm, bumpy so far, just wait until @cdcgov and the media and all those public schools that couldn't be bothered to open this year try to make kids get the shot.

It's gonna be AWESOME.

Julia Kollewe

US drugmaker Pfizer expects to make $26bn (£19bn) in revenues from sales of its Covid-19 vaccine this year, with its soaraway product accounting for more than a third of the company's annual income.

The vaccine, which was developed with Germany's BioNTech, contributed $3.5bn in global revenues at Pfizer in the first three months of the year, and the company had expected it to bring in $15bn over the course of 2021.

Now the jab, priced at $39 for two doses in the US and about $30 in the EU, will generate 73% more than forecast. The

This piece from Nicholas Wade, who covered science for @nytimes for 30 years, is a must-read - it lays out in terrific detail the overwhelming evidence that #sarscov2 is the product of a Chinese lab accident.

When it comes to funerals, looks like $35,500 is the new $9,000.

Added bonus: "there is no requirement for the deceased person to be a U.S. citizen, non-citizen national, or qualified alien."

This definitely will not lead people to reclassify deaths as caused by Covid.

Fact check: Wrongo. ~190 million flu vaccines were given last year; even if every person under 18 was vaccinated, that's 120 million adult doses, and they skew to the elderly.

This is a short but devastating takedown of the usefulness of masks and should be required reading for every politician in the country. They should have to rebut every point in the book before they can implement a mask mandate.

This is science by poll/focus group. Fauci et al thought talking about herd immunity would encourage people to be vaccinated, so they talked about it. Now the polls are telling them it's confusing, so they want it to go away

Hey, Craig, remember last month when you made up that story about all those "really sick" patients who'd been desperate to be vaccinated but couldn't be?

No? Well, check out the screenshot.

Please, Tucker, have Craig on! Have me too. A debate. I think some eyes might be opened.

All wanted to get vaccinated but didn't know how to navigate appointments, transportation. Might sound easy, but for many, it's not.

Expanding eligibility doesn't always

1/ We're now five months into the rollout of the #Covid vaccines - enough time to make some judgments of how they're working in the real world.

So let's talk honestly about the good, the bad, and the ugly. (I promise, no prion variants or shedding.)

2/ The good: At this point I think we have to agree the mRNAs are broadly effective at full protection. The Israeli and British data are too strong.

This assessment comes with two big caveats. Broadly effective does NOT mean 95% effective in the population most at risk...

3/ People are still dying in Israel (the equivalent of about 250-300 a week in the US) - and we are seeing breakthough infections and deaths here. Still, even 80% long-term effectiveness in the elderly would be a huge win for them and really end the death counting...

4/ The even more important caveat is that we do not know how long the protection will last. The companies are suggesting annual shots will be needed, which doesn't say much about their confidence. And we don't know if the side effects of a 3rd (or 10th!) shot will be tolerable...

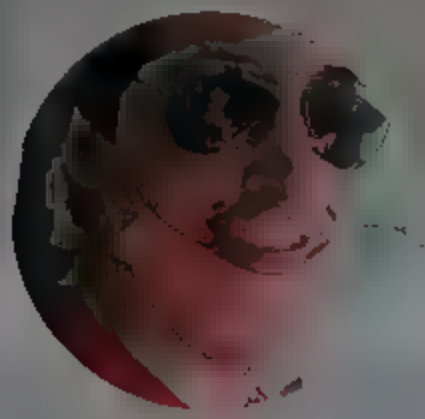
5/ Nonetheless, the fear of January and February - that the vaccines simply wouldn't work in the elderly - has not panned out. And that is without doubt good news.



Okay, onto the bad: the vaccines DO cause a short-term spike in cases when they are first dosed.

6/ I don't think this is arguable either. It's been true essentially everywhere. If the vaccines offer 10 years of protection, I think the advocates have a case for ignoring the bump; but if they tap out after six months it is more relevant to the overall cost-benefit analysis...

12/ The question if the spike proteins are contained locally near the injection site is complex and technical, above my pay grade. I do not claim to have an answer. But I will say European regulators reported "mRNA could be detected in all examined tissues except the kidney."

14/ The VAERS reports have other strange side effect clusters. Tinnitus is one. Does that make sense pharmacologically? Could it be related to the LNP shell around the mRNA? I don't know. Neither does anyone else.

But what I do know is that these are worth investigating...

effective at full protection. The Israeli and British data are too strong.

This assessment comes with two big caveats. Broadly effective does NOT mean 95% effective in the population most at risk...

3/ People are still dying in Israel (the equivalent of about 250-300 a week in the US) - and we are seeing breakthough infections and deaths here. Still, even 80% long-term effectiveness in the elderly would be a huge win for them and really end the death counting...

4/ The even more important caveat is that we do not know how long the protection will last. The companies are suggesting annual shots will be needed, which doesn't say much about their confidence. And we don't know if the side effects of a 3rd (or 10th!) shot will be tolerable...

5/ Nonetheless, the fear of January and February - that the vaccines simply wouldn't work in the elderly - has not panned out. And that is without doubt good news.

Okay, onto the bad: the vaccines DO cause a short-term spike in cases when they are first dosed.

Another week, another 39,000 adverse event reports following #Covid vaccines added to VAERS. That's 157,000 reports so far, including 9,200 deaths, permanent disabilities, or life threatening events - but the true number of reports is far higher, though @cdcgov won't disclose it.

I was 6-12 months in front of public health and the media about:

The safety of being outside.

The lack of risk to kids and need for schools to open.

The lack of proof lockdowns help.

The evidence #Sars-Cov-2 came from a lab accident.

They'll figure out vaccines eventually.

Hi Alex,

I cannot thank you enough for all of your hard work and level-headed reporting on Coronavirus these last few months. I do not have a Twitter account, but came across your feed while searching for real-time, fact-driven reporting on the outbreak sometime in March. I have been a faithful daily reader ever since. Your posts are a much welcome counterpoint to the often-changing, but always-panicked daily drumbeat from "Team Apocalypse."

I wanted to write to quickly echo a theme that seems to have emerged in some of your more recent posts. I am a 38 year old securities lawyer living in Hoboken, working in Manhattan. Over the last week or so, the chorus of friends and relatives that live in and around NYC and who are shell of itself (when this lockdown ever ends. The two, seemingly conflicting things that struck me based on any number of conversations I've had this past week, were, first the political leanings of the group (New York City is no bastion of red conservatism), and second, that the concerns shared among the group had very little to do with the threat of the disease, but much more to do with the impact of the lockdowns. I will also note that these were generally people in professional positions that are still getting paid during this time, and so my note here probably does not even capture the general tenor of a much larger number of people who aren't lawyers, accountants, bankers or traders, and who themselves I would estimate, aren't sticking around while their hospitality, entertainment, luxury or other 'non-essential' business is shuttered.

I know my experience is anecdotal and so might be a complete outlier in the grand scale of the 25 million people in the tri-state area. But, at least in a few cases, the same

3/ And, for contrast, a mom of three in Illinois who can't leave and desperately fears not having access to outdoor pools or camps this summer:

Primary

Alex, I have a 6, 4, and 2 year old. The kids are ok in that they are healthy and live in a happy, safe home. My little guy does 12 piece puzzles all day (the weather has been bad). Does one, takes it apart, does it again. Over and over. Only a mother who watches her kids would see this as a problem. It's like his world has become so small. Every motherly instinct I have (and I'm new to this and not that great) tells me my children need to be outdoors, at the playground, learning & playing new sports, and around their little buddies. I miss school. I think their teachers are great influences on them. We have no family near us, so teachers are their only break from me. And I'm not allowed to offer reason, this irks me in the worst way. Like adults aren't smart enough or wise enough like He to play in a group of 4? Does he think his state is full of idiots who need to be babysat so strictly and if left to their own accord will get in a foursome and sneeze into each others mouths? Or, alternately, is there some study out about how only 2 people can share the outdoor air per 200 yards? If that's the case, shouldn't he share that with us idiots? Seems like important info. But something tells me this is just some rule this man is putting in place to flex his authority. And in what other areas is he doing this? Is closing schools just his way of feeling powerful? Is he enjoying the power so much that he will ruin summer for all of Illinois' youth? How can we be hurt?

Maybe instead of trying to heroically interpret ambiguous survey data, we should look directly at the variable of interest: how many people are getting vaccinated. It underwent a huge nonlinear plunge timed exactly to the J&J pause and has never recover...

A healthy 17-year-old in Utah has been hospitalized with multiple blood clots in the brain after receiving the first dose of the @pfizer vaccine:

abc4.COM

Draper teenager hospitalized with blood clots after COVID-19 vaccine shot

His mother, who tells ABC4 the pediatrician initially dismissed the symptoms as a pulled neck muscle, says she was convinced it was something else.

"He could not move his neck without the assistance of his hands," says mother Cherie Romney.

That was just a few days after the shot. Plus, now her son suffered from fevers and incessant headaches.

Romney says she knew she needed to keep advocating to doctors that something wasn't right.

Finally, after more than a week of the symptoms, the Corner Canyon High school basketball player and his family had answers: two blood clots inside his brain, and one on the outside.

"The hardest thing was I let him get that shot. And he was healthy and well before," says Romney.

This is a super-good question. It's hard for folks to admit they're wrong. But it shouldn't be this hard.

Maybe they're hoping the Chinese will invent - I mean discover! - a plausible upstream virus in time to get the story back on track.

The reason that the corporate media still won't tell you that COVID came from the Wuhan Lab is because they don't want you figuring out what Dr. Fauci was actually funding with your taxpayer dollars.

Wow. WOW. @cdcgov only wants to examine post-vaccine infections with a PCR threshold of 28 or under.

That standard ignores 90+% of #Covid infections. The entire epidemic would have looked very different if it had been used.

Debra's Tragic Death

Debra, the imaginary woman from the Baltimore City Health Department's "You Still Aren't Vaxxed, Debra" advertisement passed away at 5:15pm on May 3, 2021. Doctors said she died from complications related to blot clots and a massive heart attack within 2 hours of receiving a COVID-19 vaccination shot. This is the conspiracy theory Ben was referencing. I doubt it's the reason for any insufficient media attention to the lab leak hypothesis, which — as she noted in her question to Psaki — many US govt officials say deserves more study.

Fascinating that this piece - which is very well done but really has nothing that hasn't been discussed since last summer - has catalyzed questions about the lab leak theory. Good journalism sometimes is telling people the same thing over and over until they're ready to hear it.

Meanwhile in places like Texas and Florida, schools have had in-person learning since last fall. Some districts here in Texas have already dropped the mask mandates and many larger districts have announced no masks starting this

How can a mask that doesn't filter effectively in the sub-5 micron range (much less the sub-micron range) stop a sub-micron airborne particle (much less a 100 nm airborne virion)? Or do you think we should all be wearing N95s?

First of all, the virions are not naked in the air. They come out in much larger aerosols of saliva and respiratory fluid. We made this cartoon to show that even medical journals were getting this wrong:

It's crucial to know how quickly the US has become an outlier internationally on schools (surprised the media hasn't reported much how far off we are? Me neither).

Among the many countries with at least semi-open schools:
China
France
Germany
Japan
South Korea
Sweden
Switzerland

Three critical points:

Denying kids school harms them educational and socially.

Kids are at near zero risk - far less than the flu - from coronavirus.

We will have no V-shaped economic recovery - and little recovery at all - without working schools.

1/ Meanwhile, get ready for this stunner: the US may already be beginning to see a post-Covid wave of LOW overall deaths (because so many people who died of #Covid were so sick they would have died within months).

I don't think we can be sure yet, but the evidence is suggestive:

The studies generally do not accurately account for the severity of comorbidities in people dying of #Covid (this is clear from the huge percentage of deaths in nursing/care homes. Those residents have a median life expectancy of five to 18 months, depending on the study).

In this case, yes. The report was fake. It was an unfortunate case that vaccine advocates will use to discredit VAERS. My read on the reports is that the vast majority are authentic - unfortunately, the highest-profile ones (i.e. child deaths) - may be more likely to be fake.

For example, here's a report that is probably fake: the supposed death of a 26-year-old who called "his mother, his sister, and his mentor" on 4/20 at around 4:20 p.m. "Police is investigating the case."

420, yo!

Get Berenson to bite on that, it's a double win.

Oh, the Long Covid data are far less trustworthy than VAERS. They're not just self-reported, they're <> always compiled by researchers with a clear bias - financial and ideological - in favor of making Long Covid look as severe as possible. And lying is not illegal.

2/ All this might (maybe) be justifiable if they worked.

But we have no evidence that they do; not on the micron level, not on the national level, and not in between. Tell me about all the hairdressers you like - the only decent randomized clinical trial failed.

Here's the reality: a group of skilled technicians with a financial and ideological interest in continuing this research locked themselves into supporting China last year.

That's not the interesting part.

The interesting part is this: who will be the first to break away?

I'm sure you know a few.

Say, remember when Petey Daszak got that letter in @TheLancet published? The one calling efforts to examine a possible Wuhan lab leak a "conspiracy theory" WITHOUT DISCLOSING HE'D FUNDED THE LAB? Whatta kidder!

So there is some (not very) detailed information in the package insert: 4 (maybe 5) serious adverse events among 1,100 teens who received vaccine, 1 who receive placebo, events not disclosed:

Unsolicited Adverse Events

In the following analyses of Study 2 in adolescents 12 through 15 years of age (1,131 of whom received Pfizer-BioNTech COVID-19 Vaccine and 1,129 of whom received placebo), 98.3% of study participants had at least 30 days of follow-up after Dose 2.

Serious Adverse Events

Serious adverse events from Dose 1 through up to 30 days after Dose 2 in ongoing follow-up were reported by 0.4% of Pfizer-BioNTech COVID-19 Vaccine recipients and by 0.1% of placebo recipients. There were no notable patterns or numerical imbalances between treatment groups for specific categories of serious adverse events that would suggest a causal relationship to Pfizer-BioNTech COVID-19 Vaccine.

Non-Serious Adverse Events

TL: DR - In the @pfizer teen #Cov.d vaccine trial, 4 or 5 (the exact figure is hidden) of 1,100 kids who got the vaccine had serious side effects, compared to 1 who got placebo.

The FDA says there's no pattern. Of course the FDA also said the CVST case in the @jnjnews clinical trial wasn't related to that vaccine, so, you know, everybody makes mistakes...

Hearing more cases of ugly vaccine side effects - not from readers but second-hand from folks I know.

I sense those types of stories are driving the decline in shots more than anything else.

Why did vaccine advocates make the mistake of assuming word of mouth would be positive?

You'll be pleased to know @CDCgov errs on the side of protection. Except when it comes to experimental vaccines for 12-year-olds!

> reviewed papers. CDC cannot provide the specific risk level for every activity in every community and errs on the side of protection when it comes to recommending steps to protect health.

Serious adverse events from Dose 1 through up to 30 days after Dose 2 in ongoing follow-up were reported by 0.4% of Pfizer-BioNTech COVID-19 Vaccine recipients and by 0.1% of placebo recipients. There were no notable patterns or numerical imbalances between treatment groups for specific categories of serious adverse events that would suggest a causal relationship to Pfizer-BioNTech COVID-19 Vaccine.

Has anyone ever tried to quantify the number of excess deaths from ventilators in NY and the Northeast last spring? Would it even be possible to do so?

Replying to @AlexBerenson and @US_FDA

They blew out people's lungs and killed them because they were scared. They were putting people who could walk and talk on vents thinking they were saving themselves, and that's why the NE death rate was so high. Despicable.

Can we also appreciate the irony of [illegible] calling out to CDC with this apt shark attack metaphor when he made the very same kind of claim a couple wks ago, saying C19 "has killed fewer than 450" age 0-17, when the number is 286?

Actually under 200. @cdcgov's own count shows 1/3 of #Covid deaths in that age range aren't Covid even under the most liberal counting standard.

Beyond absurd. @nytimes surveyed epidemiologists again (remember, last June 35% WOULDN'T GO OUTSIDE FOR THE MAIL).

Now we can safely assume these folks were first in line at the vaccine clinic.

Even so 55% won't hang out OUTSIDE with no masks, and 70% won't eat inside.

Vaccinations mean the pandemic is moving to a phase when behavior will depend on people's individual tolerance for risk.

Remember, even if the passports are called "voluntary," once they exist, they will be used to make the lives of people who have not been vaccinated more difficult. They are a quasi-mandate.

5/ Even though far more doses of Pfizer and Moderna were given in April than in January (no JNJ doses were given then, because the vaccine had not yet been authorized).

The only reasonable reading of the data is that JNJ reports have been moved to the head of the line.

No, in that you'd expect the opposite, that they would slow walk the JNJ reports. It's hard to imagine an explanation for this other than the obvious one, that they are trying to protect the mRNAs.

I don't think people understand how serious the VAERS issue is. In the time it's taken for the missing January reports to get in the database, over 100 million Americans have had at least one shot. Those folks do not get a do-over. And they consented without full information.

My girlfriend works for NYS DTF, she says there have been no state worker furloughs as of yet. That includes the court workers, dmv, and every other worker who is sitting home doing nothing right now (she's actually doing some work although they're not doing collections at the moment so very slow). She says cutbacks (aka furlough) were mentioned for the first time on a call today but just in broad terms nothing on the horizon not just getting paid. They have workers from other agencies volunteering for OVERTIME (time and a half)to help out with the DOL & DOH call centers... which as you could imagine given the private sector layoffs and media hysteria, respectively, are overwhelmed

Not just getting their regular salaries, either:

This British study - now eight months old - is the definitive answer on whether #Covid is dangerous to any child who is not already profoundly unwell. And the answer is no.

So why would you give your healthy child an experimental vaccine?

Today on Walensky's Anatomy:

A woman wearing a mask walks into the ER.

WALENSKY: Why? God why?

PATIENT (puzzled): My head hurts-

W (sobbing): No, the MASK-

P: But I thought-

W: The science has CHANGED. Take it off! NOW! Code Blue!

NURSE (wearily): I'll get the Haldol.

Several folks have recently encouraged me to set up a Substack or Patreon account. I lean hard towards Substack (and possibly using much of the money to hire researchers/reporters, the first step towards an independent news organization).

A couple folks have mentioned Coinbase and crypto. I do in fact have a Coinbase account - I set it up for the NFT auction. I suppose I could accept anonymous donations there, though it feels weird.

This is a risk. I think it's less of a risk than either knowing the major donors, as <>EVERY journalism nonprofit does, or tracking pageviews and engagement as places like do. Those are far more direct.

Let's agree, a "vaccine failure" should have at least as many symptoms as the median case of #Covid. In other words, none. (Amazing chart from Italy attached.)

And this email shows why @US_FDA was ethically bound to make sure everyone knows the potential dangers. PEOPLE ARE AT RISK. This woman might have died if her physician hadn't ordered an MRI.

I guess the vaccine church would call that a fair price to avoid "vaccine hesitancy."

> Thank you so much for all you have been doing to shed light on this Covid vaccine issue. It is so important for people to understand the full picture in order to make the best decision for themselves. My husband and I are both medical professionals and advocates for informed consent. Yesterday evening, this issue hit home for us as my 36-year-old female cousin had emergency surgery to evacuate multiple clots to the veins in her brain. She had the Johnson & Johnson vaccine about 10 days ago and developed a severe headache a few days after. When her head pain was severe and unrelenting, she finally saw her family medicine doctor who ordered an MRI yesterday after seeing the news that the J&J vaccine had been paused. The MRI revealed numerous clots in her brain and she was immediately sent to a large hospital for surgery. So far, she does not seem to

A great point here on the absurdity of the way @cdcgov defines fully vaccinated.

Also: if you had the ro and recovered, you have natural immunity at least as good as the mRNAs and far better than @jnjnews, yet CDC still says you have to wear a mask.

Don't make no sense.

Primary

Hi Alex,

Of all the head scratching moments of our response to this virus, the "fully" vaccinated has me most currently perplexed. CDC published studies show 80% efficacy two weeks after one dose of Pfizer or Moderna. The CDC also estimates J&J's efficacy at 60%. Yet, one dose of J&J is considered fully vaccinated. Consequently, I can be partially vaccinated by one dose that's 20% more effective than the alternative but still have restrictions per the CDC and, thus, by my employer, a university.

2/ As it happens, many cases of post-vaccine anxiety, depression, and suicidal ideation in young people - and even completed suicides - pop up in VAERS too. It's hard to tell if the signal is real because the denominator is so large, but they're there and some are quite striking.

Unfortunately, we need to compare the number of teens committing suicides for all reasons (which has gone WAY up). Guessing it wasn't fear of the virus that was depressing them if the vaccine didn't alleviate their agony. History will not be kind to this period...

It is absurd for the Times to blame the "economic and physical strain" of the virus (which actually means lockdowns) for the increase in shootings.

There are several examples of hospital systems collapsing due to COVID-19 around the world. India and Brazil had their entire systems collapse. Several other countries (Canada, UK, China) had to build temporary hospitals to fill the need.

The indoctrination starts early.

This makes me sick. Especially since young kids are way more likely to become ill from a dirty mask than the ro (I can say this confidently since there is ~0 chance they will become ill from the ro).

Dr. Adams is pro-vaccine and mask, but unlike the blue-check epidemiologists, he gets what was happening. Masks were going away in any case - @cdcgov looked worse by the day. And passports were flatlining. This was a concession to reality.

> Jerome Adams @JeromeAdamsMD
> I understand many are concerned about lack of ability to verify who is vaccinated, but it became pretty clear that "passports" were unlikely to be tolerated/ implemented in most public settings. IMHO the missed opportunity was not focusing more on level of spread as a criteria.

So we've had a 9/11 commission and now a "9/11" type commission to talk about Jan 6. When will there be "9/11" type commission to investigate the origins of Covid, our horrific, pseudo-science response and the adoption of draconian, destructive policies?

He said "at least."

My read - based on overall mortality and the number of nursing home deaths - is that 20-35% are "with" deaths.

Plus 3-5% of deaths that are completely misclassified - homicides with a positive test, etc - and skew much younger than the median.

Dusty @Dusty_PWV
Replying to @AlexBerenson @DKThomp

Just shy of 19% of breakthrough cases. If this number were similar to COVID-related deaths in the US, more than 110,000 would be "with" not "from"...

So buried in a long whine from @DrLeanaWen about how it ain't right that we don't need to wear masks anymore is an actual nugget of information - a confirmation that Uncle Joe's crew has been putting together vaccine passport requirements all along!

This is a very fair question. I don't see any evidence the vaccines cause any increase in population-level mortality AFTER the temporary increase in Covid deaths following the first dose in older people (see the U.K. and Israel in January, etc).

> Nelly Tella @NellyTells
> Playing devil's advocate, if deaths are below av. at the moment as I've heard (please disabuse me of this notion if incorrect) are the injections as immediately mortally dangerous as they are portrayed on our side? Note: I'm morally obliged to reject these jabs. Please discuss.

I don't think anyone being objective thinks these shots cause large numbers of people to drop dead. Its that the ones who do we're likely not at risk from Covid to begin with, and we have no idea what might happen with mass vac during a pandemic (immune escape/ADE) later

Based on group discussions and voting yesterday, we're putting these two things into effect starting next Saturday for Ultimate at Antelope:

1. Mask policy:
A. Fully-vaccinated people can choose to either wear a mask or to not wear a mask
B. Those NOT fully-vaccination MUST wear a mask

2. Proof-of-vaccination tracking system:
A. Bring your proof-of-vaccination when you

A scientist at a biotechnology company thinks the vaccines may increase miscarriage risk by stimulating interferon production.

Make sure to read the last screenshot about potential long-term autoimmune effects, too. "At this point only time will tell." Great!

I have been following you on twitter and have seen your recent posts regarding miscarriages post vaccination. I have a hypothesis that may explain the connection between the two, but this of course would need to be tested to confirm.

In pregnancy, the immune system is tightly regulated to protect the mother and the developing child. The mother's immune system must be suppressed just enough to keep it from attacking the fetus, but active enough to protect the fetus from different pathogens. The fetal stem cells also produce immune responses to keep it protected from viral and bacterial pathogens. Additionally, the immune system plays a role in the development and health of the placenta. A decent review paper on the role of the immune

I'm skeptical by nature, especially when someone speaks in broad generalizations or without facts. I also question authority, especially when presented as absolute. This situation has not helped my trust In the profession.

From a reader who argues childhood/teen vaccinations must be stopped...

I hope you read this. I thank you for your efforts over the past year. I am a data junkie and former Wall Street guy and have done my best to follow this travesty even though frankly I know there was nothing I could do to change how the information or misinformation was given to the public.

I am writing to ask you to urgently shift your focus on to the disaster of the FDA emergency authorization for 12-15 year olds. I know you brought it up on several tweets. But for millions of parents this is the line in the sand. I am watching friends line up their kids in Northern California and they are almost clueless to the CDC age stratification data showing effectively zero risk to kids. My daughters school sent an email "pushing" the vax on 12 year olds in an aA mail.google.com

only. I confronted the head of school and his reply was that we vaccinate kids for measles and mumps. It's literally insanity. He also believes this makes sure there is no community spread when the data clearly shows that younger kids are not vectors for transmission and that the vaccine itself really is targeted to reducing risk of covid outcomes and will not fully reduce spread. I am horrified at the pressure being exerted on young girls given some of the adverse effects we have seen on menstruation and possibly fertility.

1/ The Ontario arbitration fight about masks is really stunning. The background: several Ontario hospitals wanted to make all nurses get flu vaccinations. Legally they couldn't. So they required the nurses who wouldn't get vaccinated to wear masks. The nurses filed a grievance...

2/ saying that masks were useless and they should not be forced to wear them. Both sides took the arbitration very seriously. A long fight ensued. Both sides called experts and offered evidence. And in two decisions - in 2015 and 2018 - separate arbitrators ruled for the nurses.

28. In the result the hearing transcripts ran to more than 3500 pages. There were 249 exhibits several of which constituted substantial volumes of material in themselves. Among the exhibits were over 100 academic articles, reports, and commentaries from medical and scientific journals many containing complex statistical material designed to be understood by experts and professionals in the fields of their respective inquiries.

well, what i would say, is anyone who had an elderly and sick parent knows that visits to hospitals, while often necessary, can also inflame and prolong a situation because of all the microbes that exist in even the best run hospitals.

That creaking you hear is another massive course correction coming from the geniuses @cdcgov.

It is also a LIE. The data are clear. If you have had #Covid, you are as well-protected as any vaccinated person. Natural immunity is real and effective.

This @Facebook post purporting to prove that masks work is making the rounds (14K Twitter retweets from a single post). Typical Team Apocalypse misinformation/pseudoscience. Why? Bc #Sarscov2 is a VIRUS. It's far smaller than bacteria (and can't reproduce in a Petri dish anyway).

The people retweeting this come in two categories - those who have no idea about the difference between bacteria and viruses (the OMG LOOK group) and those cynics who know but don't care (you can tell them, bc they are careful not to say too much, they just present the image).

pandemic is misplaced, his latest controversial comment after saying that the infection would kill as many people as it needs to.

Doctor and television presenter Alexander Myasnikov was appointed in April to his new role of informing Russians about coronavirus treatment and prevention methods and to battle "fake news" about Covid-19. After calling the country's reported low death rate a "Russian miracle," Myasnikov said last week that "those meant funding and said candidly: "It's all bullsh*t."

"It's all exaggerated. It's an acute respiratory disease with minimal mortality," he told television personality Ksenia Sobchak in the interview for her YouTube project.

"Why has the whole world been destroyed? That I don't know," Myasnikov said, adding that he's more concerned about a second wave that he claimed "we're unprepared

Don't underestimate what the school closures mean. They are profoundly unscientific and out of step with the rest of the world; there is NO REASON for them, except to make kids miserable and keep parents at home and thus damage the economy. They are the proof: this is a pursuit.

URGENT FOR WORKERS WHOSE EMPLOYERS WANT THEM TO BE VACCINATED:

Ask your employer if refusing will affect your job review or chances at promotion.

If the answer is yes, then - per @osha_dol - the vaccine is considered mandatory.

THIS MEANS EMPLOYERS MUST REPORT SIDE EFFECTS.

AT&T LTE 1:43 PM
osha.gov

If I require my employees to take the COVID-19 vaccine as a condition of their employment, are adverse reactions to the vaccine recordable?

If you require your employees to be vaccinated as a condition of employment (i.e., for work-related reasons), then any adverse reaction to the COVID-19 vaccine is work-related. The adverse reaction is recordable if it is a new case under CFR 1904.6 and meets one or more of the general recording criteria in 29 CFR 1904.7.

arrangements for them to receive it onsite. If an employee has an adverse reaction to the vaccine, am I required to record it?

No. Although adverse reactions to recommended COVID-19 vaccines may be recordable under 29 CFR 1904.4(a) if the reaction is: (1) work-related, (2) a new case, and (3) meets one or more of the general recording criteria in 29 CFR 1904.7, OSHA is exercising its enforcement discretion to only require the recording of adverse effects to required vaccines at this time. Therefore, you do not need to record adverse effects from COVID-19 vaccines that you recommend, but do not require.

Note that for this discretion to apply, the vaccine must be truly voluntary. For example, an employee's choice to accept or reject the vaccine

Funny story: Donald Trump said a lot of dumb things about #Covid.

But on the most crucial point - the fatality rate - he was dead on long before the experts.

On March 4, he told @seanhannity he had a "hunch" it would be "way under 1 percent."

He was pilloried.

He was right.

1/ This is not a coup. Coups are military actions; what's happening now is part of a semi-normal political process. But it is now clear much of the US power structure - especially the media - hates this president so much they are committed to destroying him at any cost.

2/ Keep schools closed next fall while THE REST OF THE WORLD opens them? So be it. Foment panic over a virus that has killed a total of 9,000 Americans under 55 in four months? Ya gotta do what ya gotta do. Ignore a huge rise in crime this spring? No worries...

3/ Openly attack the handful of media outlets that won't follow the narrative? Check check. Pressure big tech/social media companies to impose their own censorship? Done and done. Ignore a generation of scientific advice to justify draconian lockdowns? Absolutely!

4/ The best analogy I can think of here is the 1996 Russian presidential election, when the Russian power structure decided that Yeltsin HAD to win, that a Communist couldn't be allowed to be elected.

Alex Berenson @AlexBerenson · 14 Jul 2020

5/ And ultimately Yeltsin did win. And maybe that was the right choice; I don't know enough about Russia to guess either way. But the lies and propaganda destroyed whatever chance Russia's democracy had and set the stage for Vladimir Putin. Be careful what you wish for.

A scientist at a biotechnology company thinks the vaccines may increase miscarriage risk by stimulating interferon production.

Make sure to read the last screenshot about potential long-term autoimmune effects, too. "At this point only time will tell." Great!

I have been following you on twitter and have seen your recent posts regarding miscarriages post vaccination. I have a hypothesis that may explain the connection between the two, but this of course would need to be tested to confirm.

In pregnancy, the immune system is tightly regulated to protect the mother and the developing child. The mother's immune system must be suppressed just enough to keep it from attacking the fetus, but active enough to protect the fetus from different pathogens. The fetal stem cells also produce immune responses to keep it protected from viral and bacterial pathogens. Additionally, the immune system plays a role in the development and health of the placenta. A decent review paper on the role of the immune

Live look at the five states with the most #SARSCoV2 cases. Two of these, total population 28 million, have 48,000 #covid deaths. Two others, population 50 million, have 7,500 deaths. (True story.) Can you guess which two the media love? Or which two have Republican governors?

Team Apocalypse is not going down without a fight. From a Minnesota elementary school: "Students are used to the routine of masks and it has not affected their enjoyment of outdoor time."

Mask the brats forever!

Odds that the media will report these lowest-since-March #covid death counts: slim. Odds they will get suuuuper-excited (and yes, excited is the right word) tomorrow if there's a one-day spike as holiday weekend reports come in late: 100 percent.

This morning local news reported that Iowa had 0 reported deaths over 24 hours. But then they go on to encourage business closures and cities forcing face diapers.

Soon we'll see stories in NYT saying we should not publish charts like this because it will convince more people to stop hiding in their homes wearing masks 24 hours a day.

The virus was going to do its thing regardless... Team Apocalypse won the political battle, and won it decisively... Barely even had to put up a fight... In the end, that's all that will matter..

And the 30-day cutoff is a misnomer — because a positive PCR test does NOT mean a person has an actual active #Covid infection.

These rules are designed to produce the highest possible #Covid death count. That's inarguable.

The real question is why.

> Jennifer Cabrera #ForgetYourMask @jhaskinscabrera
> When evaluating the COVID death toll, it's important to understand that all deaths within 30 days of a positive COVID test are considered COVID deaths unless exclusion criteria are met (trauma, suicide)....

Even worse, did you know ~10,000,000 Americans have died since @RealDonaldTrump became President? And over 20,000,000 died when @barackobama was President! WHY DO PEOPLE KEEP DYING?!? THIS IS WRONG. WE MUST END DEATH. Or we can never celebrate anything ever again. Or go outside.

A scientist at a biotechnology company thinks the vaccines may increase miscarriage risk by stimulating interferon production.

Make sure to read the last screenshot about potential long-term autoimmune effects, too. "At this point only time will tell." Great!

i have been following you on twitter and have seen your recent posts regarding miscarriages post vaccination. I have a hypothesis that may explain the connection between the two, but this of course would need to be tested to confirm.

In pregnancy, the immune system is tightly regulated to protect the mother and the developing child. The mother's immune system must be suppressed just enough to keep it from attacking the fetus, but active enough to protect the fetus from different pathogens. The fetal stem cells also produce immune responses to keep it protected from viral and bacterial pathogens. Additionally, the immune system plays a role in the development and health of the placenta. A decent review paper on the role of the immune

New French antibody data from a high school in Oise (north of Paris): 25 percent of 651 students, teachers, and others were infected. Yes, 1 in 4 - even more than today's NYC data!

No deaths in the group of 171 infected (median age 37). Nine hospitalized.

A scientist at a biotechnology company thinks the vaccines may increase miscarriage risk by stimulating interferon production.

Make sure to read the last screenshot about potential long-term autoimmune effects, too. “At this point only time will tell.” Great!

I have been following you on twitter and have seen your recent posts regarding miscarriages post vaccination. I have a hypothesis that may explain the connection between the two, but this of course would need to be tested to confirm.

In pregnancy, the immune system is tightly regulated to protect the mother and the developing child. The mother's immune system must be suppressed just enough to keep it from attacking the fetus, but active enough to protect the fetus from different pathogens. The fetal stem cells also produce immune responses to keep it protected from viral and bacterial pathogens. Additionally, the immune system plays a role in the development and health of the placenta. A decent review paper on the role of the immune

1/ Crucial points about the NYS antibody study: Other studies have shown the first wave figures understate the true prevalence by 50-100%. Thus it is quite likely the real number of infected in NYC is in the range of 3 to 3.5 million, at a minimum...

2/ This implies an infection death rate of roughly 0.5 percent, or 1 in 200. However that figure is almost certainly overstated, for two reason. First, as [redacted] pointed out, the virus seems to spread most quickly through populations most at risk...

3/ So the fatality rates seem higher than they really are early on. Second, physicians increasingly agree that ventilators were overused early on in the epidemic and may have - unfortunately- increased the death rate. As physicians refine treatments and test drugs...

4/ The fatality rate should continue to drop. Overall, the fatality rate seems to be settling in the 0.25 to 0.4% range, with the average age of death roughly 80.

It's not just a few cities: homicides are up 10-50% year-over-year in practically every big city - Denver, Phoenix, Los Angeles, Boston, Houston, St. Louis, Miami - everywhere.

Forget the crack epidemic. Murder rates haven't gone this bad this fast since the late 1960s.

1/ The #Covid vaccine push is just about over in the United States. First doses are down 70% from the April peak, to the lowest levels since mid-January - and that includes a temporary bump last week from the hideous decision to allow 12-15 year-olds to get the shot.

URGENT FOR WORKERS WHOSE EMPLOYERS WANT THEM TO BE VACCINATED:

Ask your employer if refusing will affect your job review or chances at promotion.

If the answer is yes, then - per @osha_dol - the vaccine is considered mandatory.

THIS MEANS EMPLOYERS MUST REPORT SIDE EFFECTS.

How much more of this made-up garbage will @nytimes push? This model compares an unverifiable estimate of what might have happened if lockdowns had not occurred with actual death counts (which themselves are iffy).

There's no real-world evidence lockdowns have saved lives...

> Peter Baker @peterbakernyt
> Had the US begun locking down just one week earlier, it would have saved 36,000 lives, study finds, and if it had done so two weeks earlier it would have saved 54,000 lives. @jamesglanz @campbellnyt nytimes.com/2020/05/20/us/...

As I wrote earlier this week: The way to judge if lockdowns work is not to model them - but to run real-world tests, ideally by turning them off and on; we are running those tests now. They show no evidence lockdowns are effective (and some evidence that they worsen the spread).

Nice thread. Well said. You cannot fact check opinions. 2 plus 3 = 5 no matter what someone's opinion of that is. You are obviously "on to" the manipulation game being conducted. Alas, I believe it has been going on for decades. That's my opinion.

Make sure to read the last screenshot about potential long-term autoimmune effects, too. "At this point only time will tell." Great!

I have been following you on twitter and have seen your recent posts regarding miscarriages post vaccination. I have a hypothesis that may explain the connection between the two, but this of course would need to be tested to confirm.

In pregnancy, the immune system is tightly regulated to protect the mother and the developing child. The mother's immune system must be suppressed just enough to keep it from attacking the fetus, but active enough to protect the fetus from different pathogens. The fetal stem cells also produce immune responses to keep it protected from viral and bacterial pathogens. Additionally, the immune system plays a role in the development and health of the placenta. The overall effects of this epidemic have essentially been impossible for the average person to see without a microscope. Hospitals are not overflowing. Bodies are not piling up in the streets. Most of us will never know anyone under 55 (65? 70?) who has died of [illegible].

80 625 2.9K

Alex Berenson @AlexBerenson · 12 Aug 2020

But instead many people feel like the world is ending? Why? More than anything else, it's the obsessive - almost sordid - fascination with death counts, updated in real time and presented without context (average age of victims, how many people generally die in a year, etc)...

76 512 2.9K

Alex Berenson @AlexBerenson · 12 Aug 2020

Why are we counting deaths this way? We've never done this for any other illness. Never. And there are lots of reasons, but maybe the most important is that we're doing this largely because we can - because the technology now exists to aggregate these counts almost instantly.

Hey, remember when nurses in Canada fought for the right NOT to wear masks, and an arbitrator heard testimony and sided with them, concluding masks were useless and the requirement unreasonable?

True story. It was waaaay back in 2015, aka 5 BS, Before (Covid) Science.

concluded the masks were not protecting patients or nurses from the flu.

"The sad part about it is it was giving our patients a false sense of security, and we knew that," said Haslam-Stroud.

The Ontario Hospital Association said it was disappointed in the arbitrator's ruling.

"In light of the arbitrator's decision we are considering a number of options," said OHA president Anthony Dale. "In addition, we will continue to work with government and our members on best practices for the recovery

Michael Gardam, director of infection prevention and control at the University Health Network and Women's College Hospital in Toronto.

"Essentially they are outing you, because your personal health information -- whether you get vaccinated or not -- is now public knowledge because you're forced to wear a mask," said Gardam. "People know who you are."

From a senior faculty member at a Midwestern university: he thinks his school always planned to reopen, get tuition checks, and then close again. I always say it is impossible to be too cynical, but even I'm surprised by this game.

> At any rate, I write to offer something of a knowledgeable perspective on what is happening now and likely to occur in the coming days and weeks at colleges and universities in the U.S. I am a full professor and department head at an HBCU in the midwest. After we "pulled the plug" and put everything on line last fall, along with everyone else, we (I and my fellow mid-level administrators) started trying, at least, to prepare to return to in person classes this fall. From the beginning, it was rather apparent that upper-management (chancellor, provost, deans) were reluctant to commit to any plans at all. They formed little star chambers, if you will, and shared nothing about their discussions with the campus at large. All we got, in terms of direction, was "Plan on in person."

They've been lying since this started. Lying to scare you, lying because they think they know what's best, lying because they don't trust you to be grown-ups.

So why would you believe any of them now? About vaccines or masks or anything else?

UVA was a school that locked down hard, made masks mandatory anywhere on the grounds both inside or outside and had a toxic tattletale culture.

This wouldn't be an issue if Biden would just nut up & mandate vaccinations for everyone w/o a medical excuse, instead of off-loading that responsibility to employers. It's a pandemic — let's start treating it like one. I thought that was the point of electing him?

1/ The vaccine fanatics have come for @osha_dol.

As of last week, OSHA (correctly) required employers to report side effects if they mandated or pressured workers to get the shot.

I highlighted that rule five days ago. Now they've eliminated it. (First screenshot is new rule.)

recordkeeping log?

DOL and OSHA, as well as other federal agencies, are working diligently to encourage COVID-19 vaccinations. OSHA does not wish to have any appearance of discouraging workers from receiving COVID-19 vaccination, and also does not wish to disincentivize employers' vaccination efforts. As a result, OSHA will not enforce 29 CFR 1904's recording requirements to require any employers to record worker side effects from COVID-19 vaccination through May 2022. We will reevaluate the agency's position at that time to determine the best course of action moving forward.

And here @vox secretly changes an article about the lab leak theory to make it less embarrassing.

The post-publication changes places like Vox and @nytimes are making to articles are Orwellian in the most basic sense and need to be called out relentlessly.

It is stunning how fast the wheels have come off the criminal justice reform wagon. Philadelphia is on track to have more than twice as many murders as 2016 - 350-400 extra deaths. I can't help but wonder how much of a role subclinical and clinical THC-fed psychosis is playing.

1/ Let's be clear about one factor NOT driving the rise in US murders: gun sales.

The percentage of Americans who own guns hasn't changed in 20 years; and gun sales SOARED from 1999 to 2016, while crime PLUNGED. Guns kill, but they don't drive crime. They are an instrument.

1/ No, we shouldn't treat mental illness as a crime.

But the flip side is - we have to admit that mental illness (specifically psychosis) CAUSES VIOLENCE.

People having psychotic episodes are often dangerous. Pretending "social workers" can routinely handle them is a fantasy...

Back to The Premonition for a minute: it has a scene in which a medical examiner gives our heroine Charity Dean gardening shears so she can cut open a body. Outdoors.

An outdoor autopsy. Of a human being. In the United States. In the last decade.

That happened. Sure it did.

Hey kids! Remember the @jnjnews vaccine? The one that can cause hideous deaths in healthy young women?

Funny story. JNJ tested it with TWO doses. That trial was done 16 days ago.

But they've forgotten it! Weird, because they reported the single-dose study a week after it ended.

I remain stunned that the vast majority of investigative reporters let their blind hatred for Donald Trump and the GOP keep them from asking hard questions about #Covid and our response to it.

The lab leak is only the most obvious example.

So @apoorva_nyc - one of the lead @nytimes reporters covering #Covid - just tweeted she believes the lab leak theory is "racist." (She has since deleted the tweet.)

How can the Times let her cover any aspect of Covid going forward?

Interesting to see how the lab leak story is splitting the smarter, more fact-based journos on the left - some of whom appear genuinely chagrined they wrote it off as a conspiracy - from the true woke Twittidiots, who are inevitably doubling down on "IT'S RACIST, RACIST I SAY!"

Here, I'll translate this @nytimes headline into non-vaccine fanatic English:

Despite cash giveaways, massive advertising, and corporate pressure, US #Covid vaccinations have plunged.

Allowing kids 12-15 to get jabbed produced a minor short-term boost which is already fading.

Hey, did you know Pennsylvania voters on Tuesday slapped down @GovernorTomWolf and passed two constitutional amendments to ensure they will never again be locked down indefinitely on one politician's whim?

Probably not, since the elite media is pretending the vote didn't happen.

Fact check: true x 1000000

Most MSM reporters didn't "ignore" the lab leak theory, they actively crapped all over it for over a year while pretending to be objective out of a toxic mix of confirmation bias, source bias (their scientist sources lied to them), group think, TDS and general incompetence.

Also, the lab leak theory didn't change. It didn't suddenly become credible. It didn't jump from crazy to reasonable. The theory has always been the same. The people who got it wrong changed their minds. They are writing about themselves, with zero self awareness.

All these reporters scrambling to defend their own records on the lab leak theory are exposing their own hypocrisy & ignoring their basic error. Just report the facts. Don't act like its your job to tell us whats ok to think or talk about. Own up

Ugh. @zeynep is so far over her skis that she is now giving dangerous advice.

A) WE HAVE NO REAL EVIDENCE ANY #COVID VARIANT IS RISKIER THAN THE ORIGINAL. THE PATTERNS OF SURGE AND DECLINE ARE THE SAME FOR ALL.

B) THE CHINESE VACCINES SHOULD BE PULLED, NOT GIVEN MORE WIDELY.

transmissible variants that are taking hold around the world kill millions.

Covid's Deadliest Phase May Be Here Soon

There's troubling new evidence that the B.1.617.2 variant, first identified in India, could be far more transmissible than even the B.1.1.7 variant, first identified in Britain, which contributed to some of the deadliest surges around the world.

In countries with widespread vaccination, like the United States and Britain, we can expect that Covid cases, hospitalizations and deaths will continue to decline or stay low, especially because lab tests and real world experience show

Sure, @zeynep. Might want to look at Bahrain. Or the UAE. Or Chile. Or Uruguay (where despite a study claiming the Sinopharm vaccine cut deaths 97% but the real world data show exactly the opposite).

This time your fact-free expertise isn't just wrong, it's actively dangerous.

The ugly fact is this - and I have a regression (a type of statistical analysis) that shows it clearly - when the Chinese vaccines are included, higher levels of vaccination are actually correlated with MORE cases and deaths worldwide.

I hadn't wanted to put it out there because my focus is on the vaccines available in the US (where the issue is side effects rather than medium-term efficacy), but reading @zeynep push in @nytimes for greater use of vaccines that clearly do not work in the real world spurred me.

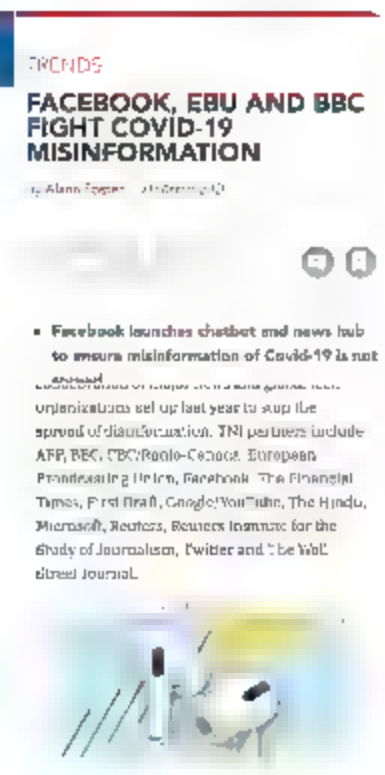
1/ Does it seem like the entire elite media speaks with one voice on the ro?



There's a reason.

They've explicitly committed to working together - and with Big Tech, in the "Trusted News Initiative," which isn't exactly a secret but isn't exactly well-publicized...

Trusted News Initiative (TNI) to combat spread of harmful vaccine disinformation and announces major research project

At a recent summit chaired by the BBC's new Director General, Tim Davie, the Trusted News Initiative (TNI) agreed to focus on combatting the spread of harmful vaccine disinformation.

This does not prove Chinese vaccines actually cause cases to rise - seasonality and other country-specific factors may be at play - but it is strong evidence they are at best marginally useful, if not completely useless.

The lumber issue goes back decades. Construction, lock downs. Etc. Gas prices are also a mix. Corn prices going higher.. expensive ethanol additives. Higher driving in summer, lock down lifting. It's not Biden yet, his policies will cause issues later on though.

BUCARAMANGA, Colombia (AP) — Colombian President Iván Duque on Friday announced the deployment of military forces to the city of Cali after at least three people died in increasingly violent protests and talks to end the social uprising stalled.

Duque repeated his assertion that the protests, which have been raging for a month, are infiltrated by illegal armed groups and promised to deploy "all intelligence capabilities" to demonstrate this.

"This deployment will almost triple our

Protests were held Friday in 10 other parts of Colombia as the country marked a month since the start of the largest protests here in decades. More than 40 people have been killed and 2,200 civilians and police injured

The protests erupted when Duque proposed a wide-ranging tax increase, but continued even after he backed off, transformed into a general outcry against growing poverty and inequality in a country where the unemployment rate doubled over the past year of pandemic.

What is so slickly, sickly brilliant about this March 2020 @google ad is how it OPENS with an ad for Google's main product, segues into shots of nurses and hospitals for an emotional kick, and then closes reminding us to stay home (and Google some more).

We never had a chance.

Meanwhile, the evidence that the mRNA vaccines cause myocarditis keeps piling up. Israel reported today that the risk is 1 in 3000 to 1 in 6000 for young men. By way of comparison, the death risk of #Covid for healthy people under 25 is essentially too low to measure accurately.

Oops. On March 2, Fauci estimates a 2% mortality rate from the virus. He's off by a factor of 10, give or take.

This was the mistake that drove all the others.

Deaths are overcounted by 20-35%, and cases are undercounted by a factor of 4-6. 170 million cases and 440,000 deaths is a 0.27% IFR.

The US is an older and not very healthy country; the worldwide rate is likely significantly lower.

The Travel Insider @thetvlinsider

Sure looks like very close to 2% to me - 610,373 deaths and 34.134 million cases = 1.8% mortality rate.

As I have said many times, we seriously considered a lab leak a possibility.

However, significant new data, extensive analyses, and many discussions led to the conclusions in our paper.

What the email shows, is a clear example of the scientific process.

This, friends, is what you call a smoking gun. Not so much for Saint Fauci - just the entire community of virologists and scientists who insisted for a year that the China-GOF-2019 virus couldn't possibly have come out of a lab, nosiree Bob.

Subject: Re: FW: Science: Mining coronavirus genomes for clues to the outbreak's origins

Hi Tony,

Thanks for sharing. Yes, I saw this earlier today and both Eddie and myself are actually quoted in it. It's a great article, but the problem is that our phylogenetic analyses aren't able to answer whether the sequences are unusual at individual residues, except if they are completely off. On a phylogenetic tree the virus looks totally normal and the close clustering with bats suggest that bats serve as the reservoir. The unusual features of the virus make up a really small part of the genome (<0.1%) so one has to look really closely at all the sequences to see that some of the features (potentially) look engineered.

We have a great team lined up to look very critically at this, so we should know much more at the end of the weekend. I should mention that after discussions earlier today, Eddie, Bob, Mike, and myself all find the genome inconsistent with expectations from evolutionary theory. But we have to look at this much more closely and there are still further analyses to be done, so these opinions could still change.

Best,
Kristian

Let's see, 3 million people are dead and we don't have a clue where this virus really came from in part because the people who should know the most about it actively obstructed any investigation into its origins.

Gotta be a crime in there somewhere, amirite? Misdemeanor, maybe?

So far, the Fauci FOIA emails show:

-He had some urgent, time sensitive discussions about gain of function.
-Told colleagues retail masks don't work due to size of virus.
-Ignored scientist who told him China was lying about virus and data.
-Was well aware of possible lab leak.

1/ Feb. 1, 2020 was a very big day for Dr. Anthony S. Fauci.

That afternoon he had a conference call with virologists - one of whom had just flagged the potentially "engineered" features of [illegible] to him - to discuss a document called "coronavirus sequence comparison."

4/ Tasks that must be done. Gee, that doesn't sound suspicious at all.

What tasks? I dunno, Dr. Fauci didn't say specifically - at least not in any emails we've seen yet. Maybe he just was sending ol' Hugh on a coffee run. Mocha, skim, hop to it, doc!

Or maybe not.

So @CDCgov says VAERS went down because it couldn't handle the volume of requests it was getting (this was an email to an academic who asked).

One important part of the Fauci emails is they were FOIA'd - that is, obtained completely legally and in a way that guarantees they are accurate - so the elite media can't say muah leak Russia hack unverified muah and try to ignore them.

If the virus came out of a lab, even accidentally, ANYONE WHO PROMOTED GAIN-OF-FUNCTION RESEARCH WOULD BE TARRED AND FEATHERED.

That was the state of play on 2/1/20.

Hey, Dr. Wen, if you want people to trust you, maybe stop saying things that aren't true?

In your op-ed, you write, "It took 14 years to prove that another coronavirus, SARS, was transmitted from bats to civet cats to humans."

Actually it took about six months.

You can tell just how bad the Fauci gain-of-function emails look from the fact that the CNNs and MSNBCs aren't even trying to debate them, they've just gone full ostrich and are hoping they'll go away.

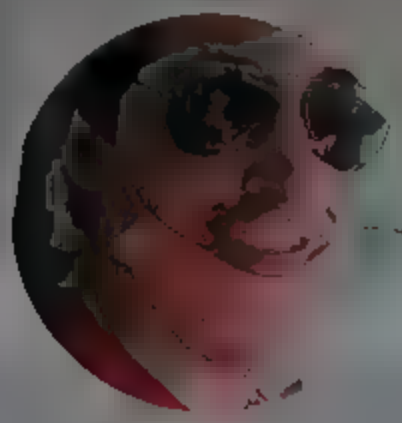
Subject: Additional data on masks

Dr. Fauci,



In addition, I found the attachedd review on masks that addresses use in the community settings. Attached are the paper and figure 3, which summarizes the data from 9 very diverse RCTs (overlapping with what I had sent earlier)

Bottom line: generally there were not differences in ILI/URI/or flu rates when masks were used, although when early use and compliance was taken into account, a few times a difference was seen.

In addition,
This case control study noted that, among SARS patients in Hong Kong without a known source of infection, cases (27.9%) were less likely than uninfected controls (58.7%) to report wearing a mask frequently in public, for what that's worth.

From a reader, apropos of the poll: "The media were derelict in their duty, and trust is gone forever..."

I guess I better get that newsletter going.

There are millions of Americans with "Science is Science" signs in their yard... that isn't because of virologists, or epidemiologists. It's because a media they (still) trust, the only entity involved in manufacturing this disaster that we are SUPPOSED to trust, told them it was so.

And that's the real crux of everything that's gone wrong. We're SUPPOSED to be able to trust the media. We aren't supposed to trust the CCP. we aren't supposed to trust the WHO (unless you also trust FIFA, and OPEC, and the UN - aka you have absolutely no idea how the world works), our society is set up to trust Media, or, even in place of trusting the media, we're at least supposed to be able to trust free speech and know if we look hard enough we can find answers.

The media were derelict in their duty, and trust is gone forever for a huge swath of the country (and the world, honestly). What platform companies did - FB, YouTube and Twitter especially - is significantly worse. They didn't just restrict speech - they purposefully restricted the truth in exchange for profit. Racketeering charges should be only the first step now that it's been proven beyond a shadow of a doubt they purposefully restricted truth because it was inconvenient to their political and financial aspirations.

Thanks.

Mike

@AlexBerenson

1/ On Jan. 31, 2020, @K_G_Andersen warns Fauci parts of #SARS-CoV-2 “look engineered.”

A secret call with Andersen, Fauci, and top virologists follows.

Fast forward to March. Andersen writes a crucial paper claiming the virus isn’t “manipulated.” Fauci’s name isn’t on it...

2/ But guess what? Fauci AND the head of the NIH AND the British doctor who organized that secret call - all helped Andersen with the @NatureMedicine paper.

Which became the ur-text used against anyone who raised down the possibility of a lab leak.

Nothing to see here, folks.

Hey, @K_G_Andersen says we have nothing to worry about, it's "just science."

Whew. That's a relief. As a reporter I always take the unsworn public statements of the people I'm covering on faith, especially when the stakes are really high.

Yay, I can quit investigating now!

1/ Wowowow. The government (USG) planned to have the National Academy of Sciences (NAS) - an INDEPENDENT group - examine the origins of #SARSCoV2.

How do I know? Fauci told a top @CDCgov official about it in Feb. 2020.

That NAS inquiry never happened, though. Gee, I wonder why.

Hey @RandPaul, next time you have Fauci under oath, ask him what happened to the official federal investigation @theNASEM was supposed to run on the origins of #sarscov2 - and why he instead worked in secret with other scientists to discourage examination of the lab leak theory.

The greatest thing about this interview is that halfway through Fauci starts defending himself on the gain-of-function question (oh, the science changed, we got more data, I dint do nuffin wrong) - a question she has no idea exists and didn't ask.

Tom Elliott @tomselliott
MSNBC's @NicolleDWallace scores the first interview w/ Fauci since his emails were made public and uses it to say: "The true mark of someone is if they look good even when their personal emails come out, so you pass the test very few of us would pass."

Also - the fact that @vanityfair - which leans hard left - ran this is the strongest signal left that the theory can no longer be ignored.

And - say it with me - investigating the theory and gain of function means investigating Fauci's role in trying to divert attention from it.

1/ The #FauciEmails are the gift that keeps on giving. Remember Peter Daszak? He's at the heart of all of it - his group funneled NIH money to the Wuhan lab, and he organized a letter to @TheLancet in February 2020 condemning "conspiracy theories" about #SARSCoV2...

and misinformation around its origins. We stand together to strongly condemn conspiracy theories suggesting that COVID-19 does not have a natural origin. Scientists from multiple countries have published and analysed genomes of the causative agent, severe acute respiratory syndrome coronavirus 2 (SARS-CoV-2),[1] and they overwhelmingly conclude that this coronavirus originated in wildlife,[2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10] as have so many other emerging pathogens.[11, 12] This is further supported by a letter from the presidents of the US National Academies of Science, Engineering, and Medicine[13] and by the scientific communities they represent. Conspiracy theories do nothing but

A new low from @usatoday - not a word about the substance of the #Fauciemails. Instead they "fact-check" their description as "leaked" rather than FOIA'd.

You can bet that if they actually were leaked, USA Today would be talking about Russian hackers.

Meanwhile, @nytimes has a huge story looking hard at the emails and the evidence Fauci feared a lab leak -

Ha!

That was a funny. JK, like my daughter says.

Still nothing from the newspaper of record (except when the record conflicts with its ideology).

Ahh @facebook. Maybe Fauci should tell Zuck!

But seriously, the open alliance between Big Tech and government agencies on #covid raises all sorts of questions, especially this one - if @facebook is serving as an arm of the government, why doesn't the First Amendment apply to it?

If the pregnant women are EXCLUDED from taking the mRNA vaccines in clinical trials, why would we ever tell pregnant women to take them AFTER the trials?

Why are they safe now?

Did evidence fall from the sky?

Just a reminder: in early 2020 China asked its expats to buy all the masks and respirators they could find and ship them home. And overseas Chinese were happy to help.

While American reporters wonder if investigating a potential lab leak is racist, the PRC keeps on keeping on.

PPE Left the World Short on Masks

It falls to @DailyMail to point out the truth: #Covid epidemics in the US and worldwide are crashing. US infections have fallen almost half in three weeks.

Guess what country HASN'T had this good news? Yep, Israel, the one that's vaccinated more people per-capita than any other.

Why ARE COVID cases plummeting? New infections have fallen 44% in the US and 30% globally in the past 3 weeks and experts say vaccine is NOT the main driver because only 8% of Americans and 13% people worldwide have received their first dose

Well well well. The little charity that could turns out to be bigger than we thought. No wonder the government investigators trying to get to the truth about the Wuhan lab were stymied at every turn.

The Pentagon gave $39 MILLION to Dr. Peter Daszak's EcoHealth Alliance - the charity that funded coronavirus research at the Wuhan lab accused of being the source of the outbreak, federal data reveals

- The Wuhan Institute of Virology is accused of being the source of Covid-19
- The majority of the DoD funding came from the DTRA, a military branch with a mission to 'counter and deter weapons of mass destruction and improvised threat networks'
- Federal grant data assembled by independent researchers shows that the charity has received more than $123 million from the government in total
- Grants from the Pentagon included $6,491,025 from the Defense Threat Reduction Agency (DTRA) from 2017 to 2020
- EHA also received $84.7 million from the from the Defense Threat Reduction Agency (DTRA) from 2017 to 2020 with the description: 'Understanding the risk of bat-borne zoonotic disease emergence in Western Asia.

The grant was categorized as 'scientific research - combating weapons of mass destruction.'

So interesting to see the fury of the smart(ish) woke bluechecks in the last week.

Now that anyone with a pulse can see St. Fauci is jes' another bureaucrat, albeit one with a well-honed instinct for self-preservation, they are MAAAD.

But not at him. No, they're angry at me...

Most of all, don't let them tell you where the scandal ISN'T.

Focus on where it is.

Kudos to Alameda County, California, for announcing it will reduce its count of reported #Covid deaths by 25% - 1 in 4 - after determining that it had included hundreds of deaths where the illness was not the cause.

This is in line with my estimate of overcounting nationally.

new COVID death toll is 25% lower than thought

County health officials reviewed COVID-19 death records and found 411 cases that were "clearly not" caused by the disease.

by Brian Krans
June 4, 2021

County were actually caused by the coronavirus, the Alameda County Public Health Department announced today.

That puts the county's new official COVID-19 death toll at 1,223, down from 1,634.

The 25% decrease—or 411 cases—is due to the fact that COVID "wasn't a direct cause" of death in these cases, according to county health officials.

said Neetu Balram, a spokesperson for the Alameda County Public Health Department.

Balram couldn't give specifics about the true cause of death for the 411 people removed from the COVID-19 data, but she said the cases were identified after reviewing codes entered by county coroners into CalREDIE, the state's database for disease reporting and surveillance. Alameda County uses

I think 3-5% of deaths are clearly wrong - homicides, ODs, etc; 20-35% are true "with" deaths, especially in Alzheimer's/dementia patients. Most of the rest are in people who are very old and/or unwell, but #Covid is the proximate cause and did accelerate their deaths.

Alex, if the subjects in the 'placebo' arm end up receiving the vax anyway, there is no 'control' group to compare long-term effects (including harm).

Check this observation from the father of 'Population Medicine', Geoffrey Rose. "If everyone smoked 20 cigs/day..."

Unfortunately this approach to the search for causes, a measuring of their potency, has to assume a heteroge exposure within the study population. If everyone smo cigarettes a day, then clinical, case-control and cohort alike would lead us to conclude that lung cancer was a disease; and in one sense that would be true, since if ev is exposed to the necessary agent, then the distribution is wholly determined by individual susceptibility.

Within Scotland and other mountainous parts of (Figure 1, left section)[1] there is no discernible relation b local cardiovascular death rates and the softness of the water supply. The reason is apparent if one extends the to the whole of the UK. In Scotland, everyone's water and the possibly adverse effect becomes recognizable onl study is extended to other regions which have a much range of exposure (r = 0.67). Even more clearly, a case-study of this question within Scotland would have been Everyone is exposed, and other factors operate to determ varying risk.

Today in great moments in #Covid panic porn: @ScottGottliebMD, aka the Human Weathervane, says on April 3, 2020 that Florida locked down too late.

"I don't understand why those governors have not acted more forcefully... Especially when you look at a state like Florida."

Fact check: lolcatz.

US cases were down 85% from the January peak when @germanrlopez offered this genius take last month. Since then they're down another 50%.

No passports required.

It falls to @DailyMail to point out the truth: #Covid epidemics in the US and worldwide are crashing. US infections have fallen almost half in three weeks.

Guess what country HASN'T had this good news? Yep, Israel, the one that's vaccinated more people per-capita than any other.

Why ARE COVID cases plummeting? New infections have fallen 44% in the US and 30% globally in the past 3 weeks and experts say vaccine is NOT the main driver because only 8% of Americans and 13% people worldwide have received their first dose

Contrary to the expectations of economist toads like this guy, lotteries and other bribes have done nothing to stop the March of new vaccinations toward zero.

I wonder if they didn't actually backfire by increasing suspicion - if it's so great, why are they paying me to take it?

Delta Delta Delta! Can we scare ya scare ya scare ya!

The bribes aren't working so they're back to this nonsense.

Next up: Coercion. You want Independence Day, suckas? You want your BBQ? Get the jab or Uncle Joe is canceling it! You think he won't? Cause he will!

So @CDCgov says VAERS went down because it couldn't handle the volume of requests it was getting (this was an email to an academic who asked).

Dr. Hoeg, you've done excellent work under difficult circumstances, but if you don't believe kids need to wear masks in schools - and you don't - you should not have put your name to a piece that says they do. This is not a small issue.

It falls to @DailyMail to point out the truth: #Covid epidemics in the US and worldwide are crashing. US infections have fallen almost half in three weeks.

Guess what country HASN'T had this good news? Yep, Israel, the one that's vaccinated more people per-capita than any other.

Why ARE COVID cases plummeting? New infections have fallen 44% in the US and 30% globally in the past 3 weeks and experts say vaccine is NOT the main driver because only 8% of Americans and 13% people worldwide have received their first dose

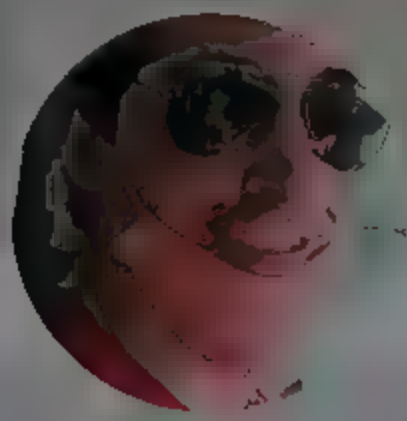
There are some simple alternatives to opt-out of such stupidity.



One would be to have your kid's primary care doctor write a note simply saying you're opting out due to personal health concerns.

Many place also allow for religious objections.

In the least, people should check to see if they've had Covid before with antibody tests. Then they can make a more informed decision.

If you are a doctor who sent me info about Kristian Andersen, can you resend it? It got caught in my gmail spam folder and I accidentally deleted the entire folder as I was cleaning it up. Ugh. Anyway please resend - I have no idea if it's gold or dross but I'd like to find out.

So lemme make sure I have this right: people from all over the country can go to DC by the thousands to celebrate an event that's important to them, but visiting families for the holidays was immoral and wrong?

1/ Several folks have pointed to this @ClevelandClinic study to argue that people who have already had #COVID don't need the vaccine.

They're right - the study showed ZERO cases of #SARSCoV2 reinfection among 1359 previously infected people who didn't get vaccinated...

One question we should all be asking: why don't the Chinese have any interest in the mRNA or DNA/AAV #Covid vaccines? They certainly could steal - I mean invent - them if they wanted. But they have stuck with older and apparently less effective vaccine techniques.

Why?

3/ Which is to say, #Covid or novid, you do not want to end up at a New York City-run hospital (maybe except Bellevue) if you have a choice.

Unfortunately last year's media-fed panic sent a lot of people rushing to those hospitals. Not all of them made it out.

1/ @cdcgov has now analyzed the VAERS data on #Covid vaccine myocarditis in teens and young adults. It is terrible.

Based only on received reports - and remember, most side effects go unreported even when they are serious - the rate is as high as 40 times the background rate...

very long window (31 days) to determine the background rate - when in reality most cases occur within days of the second dose.

The proof of how bad and common this is comes in the age stratification...

5 25 168

Alex Berenson ✓

Follow

3/ Let's assume the vaccines DON'T cause myocarditis in people over 65. In that case, we would expect to see (per CDC) 36-360 cases, the background rate. The midpoint is roughly 200.

How many cases have been reported in that age group?

26.

6:45 AM - 10 Jun 2021

16 Retweets 122 Likes

4 16 122

Alex Berenson ✓ @AlexBerenson · 22m

4/ In other words, using the midpoint as a reference, only 1 in 8 cases of myocarditis following vaccination have been reported in the 65+ group.

That sounds about right knowing what we know about voluntary side effect reporting (the lag in reporting TTP cases also shows this).

2 11 82

Alex Berenson ✓ @AlexBerenson · 21m

5/ If the gap between REAL incidents and REPORTED cases is similar in the teen/young adult group, we need to multiply the number of reported cases by 8; that would imply the vaccines cause myocarditis in young people at up to 300 times the background rate...

6/ Sorry, DELETED the tweet where I said CDC didn't sex stratify - they didn't by AGE GROUP, but they did offer an overall breakdown - 80-20 male/female. If that is true for young adults, the math changes slightly - the top-end potential risk for men is more like 500x, not 600x.

3 12 81

Alex Berenson
@AlexBerenson

Follow

7/ By which I mean young men could be raising their risk of myocarditis as much as 500-fold in getting the second mRNA shot. Again, this estimate may be high - it goes down if you figure myocarditis in young adults is frequently being reported to VAERS, or a higher base rate...

8/ But you cannot get it anywhere 1. The risk here is real and substantial.

So remind me why anyone under 25 (30, really) is getting this shot?

Oh yeah.

Because they have to.

1/ Another key point: the myocarditis risk appears HIGHEST in 16 and 17 year olds - the per-dose reporting rate to VAERS is much higher than for the 18-25 range.

We don't have enough data yet to know about 12-15 year olds - BUT THE RATE RISES AS AGE DECLINES FROM 70 ON DOWN...

3/ Let's assume the vaccines DON'T cause myocarditis in people over 65. In that case, we would expect to see (per CDC) 36-360 cases, the background rate. The midpoint is roughly 200.

How many cases have been reported in that age group?

26.

A reader offers to commit $25,000 to fund a lawsuit on behalf of a college student who already had #Covid and wants to refuse a forced vaccination. A group of plaintiffs of both sexes may be even stronger.

I suspect raising money for this will be easy.

Contact me if interested.

> I am hoping you will consider using your platform to promote this.
> I am trying to find a college student (preferably female) who has already had COVID-19 but not been vaccinated, and is now being required to vaccinate to return to a private school. I would like to support litigation against the private school because I believe vaccination should be voluntary, especially for those who have natural immunity. This is not China, with forced sterilizations. At least not yet.
> My own daughter is in this situation, but it's not her nature to fight the system and this plaintiff will get unwanted attention, so it definitely takes a certain type of individual to want this fight.
> I would personally commit the funds necessary to start litigation ($25K?) and I would lead crowd-funding efforts because I suspect there are thousands of parents who would like to see this litigation be successful, as it would bolster their own fights against their private universities.

Listening to VRBPAC yesterday would have shown you the committee was taking the myocarditis issue very seriously. But these actual scientists look at the data and consider uncertainty and actual risks on both sides. They can't just ignore data they don't like or make things up.

If the pregnant women are EXCLUDED from taking the mRNA vaccines in clinical trials, why would we ever tell pregnant women to take them AFTER the trials?

Why are they safe now?

Did evidence fall from the sky?

1/ So the @Pfizer #Covid vaccine clinical trial in 12-15 year-olds didn't show a myocarditis signal. Signals are hard to find in short-term trials.

It DID show a possible signal for psychiatric events. Which Pfizer discounted. (Like @JNJnews did with CVST in its trial. Oopsie!)

3/ Now these don't come up much.

The have appeared only 818 times in the US for all non-Covid vaccines out of the billions of doses given over the last 30 years.

And 710 times in the last six months for the Covaxes. (622 mRNAs, 88 JNJ.)

Remember, the vaccine fanatics want to pretend each individual side effect is the ONLY possible side effect, and compare the risk individually to the total risk of #Covid. Wrong. We should be looking at CUMULATIVE risks.

It is not the short term - it is the size of the study. When you do a trial on a thousand people - you will probably not see things that occur at lower rate than 1 in 1000 (which is actually quite a high rate)

WOW. Germany's scientific advisory committee on vaccinations just recommended AGAINST #Covid vaccines for people under 18, except those with serious medical conditions that might make #Covid riskier to them.

Because the Germans are so irrational and don't trust The Science (TM).

I'm definitely paranoid the myocarditis risk for COVID in this group is going to end up comparable to the risk of it developing after the vaccine, and in that way become more of a wash. Anyone have any data on this?

One question we should all be asking: why don't the Chinese have any interest in the mRNA or DNA/AAV #Covid vaccines? They certainly could steal - I mean invent - them if they wanted. But they have stuck with older and apparently less effective vaccine techniques.

Why?

Simone, a first-year Northwestern University student, suffered a case of apparent myocarditis-induced heart failure on Sunday, May 16.

Despite extraordinary measures to save her, including a heart transplant, she died Friday morning at Northwestern Memorial Hospital in Chicago.

Now her parents are struggling to understand what happened to Simone – and why they had no idea the Covid vaccines might cause myocarditis.
"I lost my only daughter," Kraimer said Sunday night. "I never thought I'd have to give up my daughter for the greater good of society."

Doctors appear to have repeatedly missed signals as Simone's condition worsened in the two weeks following her second shot – before she abruptly crashed.

In mid-May, Israel was reporting high rates of cases of mRNA vaccine-related myocarditis in young people.

Simone's physicians still have not confirmed that her vaccine caused her heart failure.

But despite nearly a month of intense investigation, including an pathological examination of her heart after its removal in the transplant, they have offered no other explanation.

"My fear is that we'll never know what happened to Simone," her father, Kevin Scott, said Sunday night. "[The vaccine] is a coincidence that is too big to ignore."

"I do suspect it was the vaccine," Krainer said. "If it wasn't direct, it played a role."

Simone had been a healthy young woman, her only notable illnesses a bout of pneumonia when she was an infant and a second in high school.

She told her mother in sixth grade she wanted to go to Northwestern. Six years later she applied early to the university and was accepted.

"We kept asking if they did and nobody could tell us if they did," Kraimer said. "It was just a runaround."

Finally, the day before Simone died, a physician's assistant promised to report the case.

With their daughter gone, Simone's parents are now hoping that her story will – at the least – raise awareness of the potential for post-Covid vaccine myocarditis.

"I never knew that there was a risk for something as serious as this," Kraimer said. "I would have wanted to."

On May 20, with a transplant looming, Simone was moved to Northwestern Memorial, the university's primary teaching hospital.

She was sedated most of the time, but doctors sometimes lightened the sedation enough for her to text her parents. "Am I going home with you?" she asked.

On Sunday, May 23, Simone's physicians told her parents that her heart did not seem to be recovering on its own and a transplant was her best option.

"We didn't have much choice," Kraimer said.

She had the transplant that night. Ultimately, her new heart did begin to pump.

But her lungs had been severely damaged, and the immunosuppressive drugs necessary for her to avoid rejecting the transplant led to severe lung infections.

After a few hopeful days, her prognosis dimmed.

And when Illinois opened vaccinations to younger people, she quickly made an appointment.

"She took it upon herself to get vaccinated," Kevin Scott said.

But she suffered serious short-term side effects after her first dose April 3 and never fully recovered, her parents said.

Throughout April she had a cough and and felt fatigued. Simone checked in with her mother, who lived near Cincinnati, frequently. Krairer asked her to go to a doctor.

But neither Simone nor her mother considered whether the vaccine might be behind her symptoms, Krairer said.

"We thought it was either allegories or a sinus infection."

So on May 1, as scheduled, Simone received her second Moderna vaccination. This time she had fewer immediate side effects.

Didja ever notice that more than two days after his cardiac arrest, neither Christian Eriksen nor his medical team has said ANYTHING about his vaccination status?
All we have are conflicting comments from the team he was NOT playing from at the time.

Maybe he was not vaccinated. I don't know.

But I know this: since last March, the media has smeared anyone asking questions as a conspiracy theorist while making definitive statements - about a possible lab leak, for example - that turned out wrong.

Meanwhile, Paul Zipser, a 27-year-old who played briefly in the @NBA and is now in the German league, just had emergency surgery for a brain bleed following his @JNJNews #Covid vaccination.

Pro athletes are the fittest people in the world. Why on earth would they be vaccinated?

Basketball players: Paul Zipser had an emergency operation

by Mathias Muller

Bayern basketball player Paul Zipser is operated on for a cerebral haemorrhage - the operation is successful.

Ten days ago, at the last semi-final match between the Bayern basketball team and team doctor Dr. Sebastian Torka. Zipser's dizziness symptoms, which also occurred in the morning, made the Bayern doctors prick up their ears because they knew that the Heidelberg man had been vaccinated against corona with the Johnson and Johnson vaccine - a vector vaccine with the same mechanism of action as the Astrazeneca vaccine. And this is suspected of causing so-called cerebral vein thrombosis in rare cases. So the FCBB docs urged a quick CT scan.

The suspicion was not confirmed, it was even worse: the pictures showed dangerous bleeding. During a closer analysis at the

The death rate from Covid with obesity isn't much different than the overall rate of obesity in the general population. It's like saying 80% of those who died from Covid were obese, when the general population is 80% obese.

"My fear is that we'll never know what happened to Simone," her father, Kevin Scott, said Sunday night. "[The vaccine] is a coincidence that is too big to ignore."

Simone had been a healthy young woman, her only notable illnesses a bout of pneumonia when she was an infant and a second in high school.

She told her mother in sixth grade she wanted to go to Northwestern. Six years later she applied early to the university and was accepted.

"She was very, very disciplined," Kraimer said.

That discipline extended to her attitude toward Covid. She always wore masks and followed Northwestern's sometimes onerous rules about testing when the school allowed its first-year students on campus in January.

Throughout April she had a cough and and felt fatigued. Simone checked in with her mother, who lived near Cincinnati, frequently. Krainer asked her to go to a doctor.

But neither Simone nor her mother considered whether the vaccine might be behind her symptoms, Krainer said.

Great news: 5 out of 6 pregnant American women are NOT being #Covid vaccinated, per @cdcgov.

(This also means a lot of OBs are quietly discouraging vaccination.)

Yes, Karen, you are being ridiculous.

And when your daughter becomes a Hunter Biden coke whore in three years to spite you, you will have only yourself to blame...

> Help! My 15-year-old wants to go to camp this summer. It's local, on a college campus, and she would be staying in a dorm. She keeps reminding me that "it's only for two weeks," and she's been so bored, and the school year was so terrible—and it's an arts camp, which is her thing. She desperately wants to go.

Indoor masking, asymptomatic testing, travel rules, etc, have NO health justification. Anyone under 50, much less 30, who is healthy enough to work is at lower risk from #Covid than many other conditions (including overdose). These are meant to make unvaccinated people miserable.

Reminder: the reason @cdcgov etc keep talking up asymptomatic transmission is that we've known for a year that when we screen groups of relatively young/healthy people for Covid (sailors, meatpacking workers) we find MASSIVE numbers of asymptomatic cases.

Alex Berenson @AlexBerenson
Specific data from a meatpacking plant that tested its 2700 employees: 1200 had #SARSCoV2, 90% asymptomatic, 12 hospitalized (1% of positive cases), zero deaths:

The alternative, of course, is that the virus is just airborne (after being shed by people WITH symptoms) and in confined environments will fairly quickly infect everyone.

But that would make masks useless.

Oh, wait -

Did you consider that meat-packing plants might not be a good analogy? There are dozens of other coronaviruses prevalent in livestock. Depending on the test, it's possible these animal viruses might show a positive in these tests.

Wouldn't it be relatively easy to conduct an experiment to take X number of asymptomatic covid positive people, capture their air droplets and see if there is infectious covid virus in those droplets?

From the employer/school point of view, quasi-mandates have several advantages. They are a fig leaf to avoid legal liability. They can be quietly lightened or removed if the backlash is too high. And some rules are clearly meant to raise social/group pressure on the unvaccinated.

Thus these rules aren't less dangerous than outright mandates. They're MORE dangerous. They are sleazy and unjustified and employees should simply refuse to comply. If enough do so in this labor market companies will back down.

Today on Walensky's Anatomy:

A TEEN staggers in, clutching his chest.

WALENSKY: Another mild myocarditis case, team! It's Juneteenth, the intern will take it.

The teen falls face down -

W (winks): You cool, dude?

NURSE: He's coding.

W: I SAID MILD!

N: I'll get the Haldol.

One of the more astonishing charts from last year is the S&P 500. It bottomed March 20 - THE DAY LOCKDOWNS WERE ANNOUNCED IN NEW YORK. By mid-April it had regained 60% of its losses.

Even as the media got more and more hysterical, the hedge funds knew the truth.

How about life-threatening cases?

VAERS has a TOTAL of 42 life-threatening myo/pericarditis case reports for non-Covid shots. 1.4 a year.

What about Covid shots?

98 life-threatening reports. 98. In six months.

The US market was already on QUAD 4 slower growth and falling inflation before Covid hit in Q4 '19, so coming out of Q1 2020 you buy QUAD 1 faster growth and lower inflation which became epic QUAD 2 into Q2 2021 faster growth and the highest inflation in our lifetime.

Dear Alex,

I follow you on Twitter. Thank you for your excellent reporting about the adverse events associated with the COVID vaccines.

I just wanted to report to you that my brother-in-law, 38 years old, no pre-existing conditions, was diagnosed with Arrhythmia 3 days after his 2nd Pfizer shot. My sister just told me an hour ago. Here are screenshots of her telling me via text. I've been following the vaccine event issue for so long, you start to think, "Maybe this is overhyped? Too much speculation?" But then that soccer player's cardiac arrest on the field last week, and now someone in my family with a brand new heart condition post vax? This isn't conspiracy theory, this is REAL. I won't

I suppose it's theoretically possible for a healthy unvaccinated 20-year-old athlete to die from a blood clot during Tommy John surgery, a procedure so routine that 1/3 of all @MLB pitchers have now had it, some twice.

Theoretically.

The sad thing is, despite my efforts informing my friends of the serious side effects of these Corona jabs and that they are in no danger of dying of Covid-19, they all took the jab.

I must be doing something wrong.

1/ Remember the good ole days - how before we worried #Covid vaccines caused myocarditis, we worried they caused clots and thrombosis?

And @cdcgov told us, don't worry, it's just @jnjnews, nothing to see with the mRNAs?

Yeah, about that.

I'm sorry for your loss.

But this is a wrongheaded and frankly immoral way to look at healthcare - and life.

If we were gods, we could protect everyone from everything forever.

We're not gods. We have to make choices.

Three ugly facts:

1) The US has far higher rates of child abuse/neglect deaths than other rich countries.

The WHO is a funny agency. I don't understand it at all, but it does let the truth slip out from time to time. I suspect the reason may be that it's big and factionalized and has a few people who aren't under anyone's control, but that's just a guess...

So thoughtful of them to make vaccines with different side effects by gender (gender, right, not sex? It's all so confusing these days!). I mean, the boys get myocarditis and the ladies get CVST and vaginal bleeding. Something to talk about on those hospital cafeteria dates!

First dose #Covid vaccines have fallen 85% in two months, to the lowest levels since the rollout began in December. Only 1 American in 1,000 is now being newly vaccinated every day.

This is the definition of pushing on a string. Which is why the coercion is ramping up.

Many people think weed isn't addictive, but it stole close to three years of my life.

I've made my wrongs right where possible, and I've been able to show up for my family as a man rather than a spoiled child.

I've been waking up early, meditating, reading, and running. I went from incredibly lonely to surrounded by people I love. My life is full again.

To those in the replies, I understand that for many, weed is totally manageable. I'm not anti-weed. In fact, I'm still pro-legalization and know it's worked miracles for many...

This was just my experience. I could hardly go a few hours without smoking. It ran my life.

I know many still in the same hole I was in because they bought into the dogma that weed is harmless. Pointing this out doesn't make one anti-weed. It just makes them sensible.

The Israel estimate of 1 case per 3000 to 6000 shots sounds about right. Say 1 in 4000. So 0.025%, not 0.00014%. EZ mistake, only off by a factor of almost 200.

Notably WHO is inarguably considering allocating a limited supply, not just risks/ benefits to individuals. Only explanation for "less urgent". WHO merely acknowledging if even 0.01% of chikdren are "high risk" that's still 220K+. Overall recommendation unchanged "should not".

> part of a group at higher risk of severe COVID-19, it is less urgent to vaccinate them than older people, those with chronic health conditions and health workers.

Remember how New Jersey's nursing homes became abattoirs last April?

And this was the state's answer?

When media panic drives how government responds to a illness that does nearly all its damage to a tiny group of very old/sick people, those people die.

Everyone suspects you're an operative engaging in controlled opposition. I see you for the sincere&decent albeit naive mensch that you are. You may start to see your following dwindle away after antagonizing your loyalists. Id recommend you begin investigating the " The Great Reset" rather than beat the drums on the covid hoax ad nauseum. The globalist have moved on from the post covid vaccine era and are ushering in plan C, an all-out assault to gin up political upheaval and chaos to distract from the Maricopa audit. Enjoy the show.

But vaccine don't gotta vaccine.

We are making a choice with every shot we give. The standard for safety needs to be very high, especially when the benefit is tiny, as it is for healthy young people.

So that's the goal.

What the CDC actually said is that 5,700 cases in that age range would lead to 215 hospitalizations (which is also ridiculous). Apoorva threw in an extra 2 for kicks, and because @nytimes is really good at critical race theory and not so good at math these days, no one noticed.

2/ Of course, not every American got #covid over those 14 months. CDC estimates about 1/3 did. Multiply the caseload by 3, and you find that 150/100,000 adolescents with #Covid are hospitalized.

In contrast, 200 out of 100,000 are hospitalized in the week after vaccination.

This is so so wrong. It assumes covid rates going forward that no one has any idea will actually occur.

It also ignores the middle ground of one dose, which would lower the myocarditis risk and preserve the vast majority of the putative viral benefit

People keep asking me why they're lying - in ways so easy to catch.

The truth is:

I don't know.

And I have to focus on the data - on catching the lies. And people usually lie incrementally, rather than in some grand plan.

But yes, sooner or later the question needs an answer.

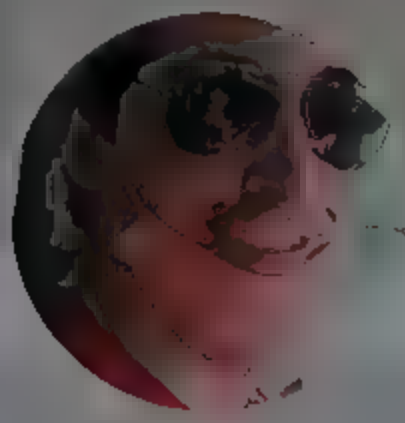
Quick update: as people have pointed out, the vaccine takes TWO doses, so we should compare combined hospitalizations after both to Covid hospitalizations.



That gets us to 300 hospitalizations/100,000 adolescent vaccinations versus 150/100,000 Covid cases.

2-to-1. Yay vaccines!

1 in 2000 = 50 in 100,000.

Safe to assume at a minimum the difference between the observed rate of 200 per 100,000 and that figure is due to vaccines (though the V-safe analysis looks for vaccine-related events, so it may be the entire 200 per 100,000 is vaccine-caused).

Previous tweet DELETED. I made an error - the denominator in one of the slides I referenced is hospitalizations per 100,000 people, not per 100,000 infections. (This complicates the math, since at any time most people aren't infected.)

Sorry. Should have waited for the Substack.

This is correct. 70% of #Covid hospitalizations in adolescents occur in those who are severely obese (>95 percentile BMI), have diabetes, or other serious conditions. Myocarditis, on the other hand, seems to occur more in healthy/athletic teens (though I don't have hard numbers).

I think I speak for all of us when I say:

How on earth did this go on for 13 years?

She has “intermittent drug issues"? She's a ROCK STAR.

And they wouldn't let her take out her IUD? How is that legal without an explicit court order (or even with one)?

1/ Some of you have asked about my new Unreported Truths Substack.

For now, it will fill a gap: stories too long to tweet, too short for booklets.

But I hope it can be much more.

Journalism is broken. Stories are reported through an open ideological lens. Or not at all.

In response, some of us are striking out on our own.

Think of these Substacks as journalistic cryptocurrencies: decentralized, independent alternatives in the information marketplace.

3/ Thus even if the vaccine prevented EVERY ADOLESCENT CASE FOREVER and had no side effects after the first week (both untrue), it would be preferable to let teens get Covid than to vaccinate them. And that's certainly true of any healthy teen.

FWIW, one reason to think the 150/100,000 figure is reasonable: the same report offers a figure of 675/100,000 hospitalization rate for all adults - which translates into 2000/100,000 - or 2% - chance of hospitalization overall, in line with what we know.

Tendentious questions with easy answers. Fun!

They were hospitalized within a week of the shot. Per CDC data, >98% of adolescents didn't stay overnight in a hospital in 2018. A few went repeatedly, so teens overall had about a 1-in-2000 chance of being hospitalized in any week.

1 in 2000 = 50 in 100,000.

Safe to assume at a minimum the difference between the observed rate of 200 per 100,000 and that figure is due to vaccines (though the V-safe analysis looks for vaccine-related events, so it may be the entire 200 per 100,000 is vaccine-caused).

1/ It's been obvious from the start that these mRNA vaccines are closer to drugs than traditional inactivated virus vaccines (the technology was MEANT as a drug, but it failed because of the side effects from repeated dosing) - why aren't they dosed by weight and age like drugs?

2/ Unfortunately the answer to that question is also obvious: dosing requirements would have slowed the trials and then interfered with the rollout (both for practical reasons and because they would have damaged the effort to cast the vaccines as completely safe for everyone)...

And Facebook is the most dangerous censor of all, because of its size, because it's a walled garden that sets its own rules, and because the people who rely on it the most are the least likely either to be aware of what it's doing or look elsewhere.

This isn't public yet, but we're building a Coronavirus Information Hub th answer people's top questions, but we'd be open to other formats too.

I'm also doing a series of livestreamed Q&As with health experts to try t that we distribute separately, but I think it could be effective as well.

This young man wound up with a decreased ejection fraction. Don't worry, though, it was only "mildly" decreased! So he has only a "mildly" higher risk of a future heart transplant. I'm sure that's comforting! I think we can all agree 13 years with an undamaged heart is plenty!

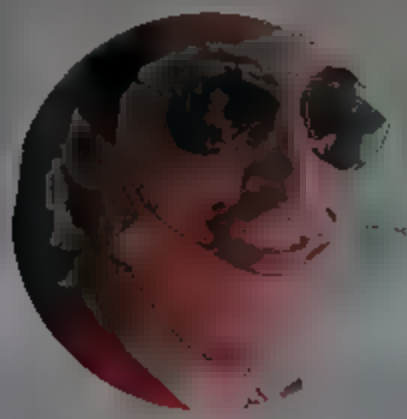
Looks like Israel is falling victim to the most dangerous variant of all: the Seasonality Variant.



The Aww-No-My-Vaccine-Antibodies-Went-Bye-Bye-It-Was-Fun-While-It-Lasted Variant may also be a thing, we'll see.

If the vaccines only protect for six months the benefit/risk is out the window for all but the oldest and sickest. Remember, even with the MOST optimistic assumptions of protection (100% forever) you can't make the math work for healthy people under 30 (and possibly older).

Have the tested the safety/efficacy of the drug(s) in any trial using repeated dosages every 6 months? Oh they haven't... then these drugs shouldn't be recommended for people with a 99.9% chance of survival from covid until they are PROVEN safe for this cohort of the population.

A reader makes a very good point. A supery-dupery good point. It's time to stop debating IF the mRNA vaccines are dangerous to some young people and start asking WHY. The companies, the @us_Fda and @NIH need to investigate NOW - and be transparent about what they already know.

I've been following you on Twitter since last spring and just joined your substack. I'm a big fan and appreciate all you've done to raise these important issues.

I'd love it if you would consider the following subject that no one (that I've seen) has yet asked: WHY/HOW are these vaccines causing myocarditis and other blood issues?

The CDC has admitted the vaccines are causing these issues. But the vaccine makers told FDA that the spike protein would remain localized - in the shoulder - and would NOT travel into the blood stream to other organs. It seems clear that this is NOT the case. Shouldn't that be cause - or it's own

I thought we already know. Spike protein circulating in the body. Vaccine getting to places where it isn't supposed to and producing spike protein where it is dangerous.

Maybe. Maybe it's the LNPs. Maybe it's some kind of autoimmune response. Maybe the temporary immunosuppression of the vaccines opens the way to infection.

IT IS NOT MY JOB TO GUESS THE ANSWER. IT'S THE COMPANY'S JOB TO PROVIDE IT.

These examples are atrocious. @facebook is censoring simple factual statements and images like a chart of deaths reported to VAERS (the federal vaccine side effect reporting system) by year.

This young man wound up with a decreased ejection fraction. Don't worry, though, it was only "mildly" decreased! So he has only a "mildly" higher risk of a future heart transplant. I'm sure that's comforting! I think we can all agree 13 years with an undamaged heart is plenty!

when he went to bed around 11pm. Threw up twice on Friday June 4 at 9:30pm & 1:30 pm. Very uncomfortable, bad headache, no energy. Mostly slept from 6pm Friday June 4 to 5am Saturday June 5. Immediately threw up when he woke up Friday. Threw up again about 30 min. later and 4 more times during the day. Still having bad head pain. Started to become confused and say things that didn't make sense. Went to ER around 4:30pm Saturday June 5. Blood work showed his sodium level was dangerously low. He was immediately given sodium and transported to Hospital ICU. Had brain MRI, lumbar puncture and lots of blood work done. Brain MRI showed signs of encephalitis. Also had myocarditis. Was in hospital until Thur. June 10. Encephalitis and myocarditis seemed to resolve quickly and he was just treated with rest and fluids along with antibiotics

when he went to bed around 11pm. Threw up twice on Friday June 4 at 9:30pm & 1:30 pm. Very uncomfortable, bad headache, no energy. Mostly slept from 6pm Friday June 4 to 5am Saturday June 5. Immediately threw up when he woke up Friday. Threw up again about 30 min. later and 4 more times during the day. Still having bad head pain. Started to become confused and say things that didn't make sense. Went to ER around 4:30pm Saturday June 5. Blood work showed his sodium level was dangerously low. He was immediately given sodium and transported to Hospital ICU. Had brain MRI, lumbar puncture and lots of blood work done. Brain MRI showed signs of encephalitis. Also had myocarditis. Was in hospital until Thur. June 10. Encephalitis and myocarditis seemed to resolve quickly and he was just treated with rest and fluids along with antibiotics

This young man wound up with a decreased ejection fraction. Don't worry, though, it was only "mildly" decreased! So he has only a "mildly" higher risk of a future heart transplant. I'm sure that's comforting! I think we can all agree 13 years with an undamaged heart is plenty!

Seems like a good time to remind everyone that neither Christian Eriksen nor his physicians have EVER made a statement about whether he was #Covid vaccinated before his cardiac arrest.

One sentence to confirm or deny. That's all it would take.

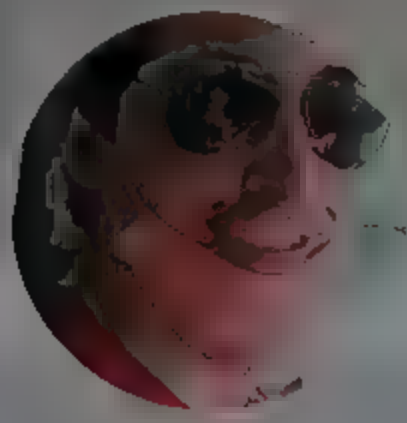
In general, (and I'm guessing @VPrasadMDMPH will back this) testing people for illness - ANY illness - if they have no clinical signs of disease is a terrible idea. Not always, I'm sure there are exceptions, but almost always.



Medical cascades: they're a thing.

Also, Portland is on track to have ~90 murders this year, almost six times (yes, SIX times) as many as it had in 2013, before the good citizens there legalized cannabis and gave downtown to anarchist rioters. So the cops are busy!

Based on the emails I'm getting people are - rightly - furious that these baseball players - some of whom are seniors and will never have the chance to compete again - are losing their chance to play for NOTHING.

1/ Two #Covid phenomena are about to collide:

In the real world, nobody cares about the ro no mo. Even in New York. Not only do you NOT have to show proof you're vaccinated at Citi Field (or anywhere else), the Mets "encourage fans to take mass transit." Super-spreaders, anyone?

In cooperation with New York State and the Department of Health, Citi Field has returned to full capacity. Social distancing and mask requirements at the ballpark have been eased effective immediately. Unvaccinated individuals continue to be responsible for wearing masks, in accordance with federal CDC guidance. A lot of us will NEVER admit out loud that almost everything we've done since last April - when the NYC hospitals didn't collapse - has been a near-total waste of time, energy, and money, if not outright counterproductive.

But the way we're living now proves we know the truth.

A lot of us will NEVER admit out loud that almost everything we've done since last April - when the NYC hospitals didn't collapse - has been a near-total waste of time, energy, and money, if not outright counterproductive.

But the way we're living now proves we know the truth.

Also: I'm worried about Lindor. Are we all just gonna keep pretending the Mets didn't commit 20% of their payroll FOR THE NEXT DECADE to a guy putting up replacement-player level stars? It's not 10 games anymore.

Team Apocalypse in full fantasyland here. Bulletin to @DrLeanaWen: not that I care, but soon enough the US will be tossing expired @pfizer @moderna_tx vaccines just like @jnjnews. Demand is effectively zero at this point. Especially for kids.

It's a mistake to pit children in the US against frontline workers & vulnerable adults globally. This is not either/or. We need to do both. Even if we gave away every dose for US children, this would cover <1% of the world. Key is to scale up global manufacturing…

If you're healthy and under 40 (50?) your risk of death from #Covid is ~ the same whether you use vaccines, anise tea, or the Magic 8 Ball for protection. "Light energy" might actually work a little better based on the Vitamin D studies (I know, I know, confounded).

Good morning. An extremely smart and worrisome take on the myocarditis issue from a reader - why assume the cases with clinical presentation bad enough to require hospitalization are the only ones where the heart has been damaged?

COVID-19 vaccines and myocarditis, the following assumptions seem to govern:

A. In "rare" cases, certain individuals will experience very serious heart damage, but

B. In all other instances, zero heart damage has occurred.

Said another way, unless you end up in the hospital with a surprise heart condition, you were among the vast, fortunate balance of the vaccinated population who experienced no negative health/heart impact while enjoying the offered benefits of COVID protection.

It seems more plausible that heart damage leading to a hospital stay sits at the extreme end of a sloping curve. The rest of the curve may be populated with varying

It would appear that the CDC conveniently benefits from the sampling bias of only electing to examine the cases of those young men (and others) who are MOST damaged, while presuming that everyone else who did not experience extreme side effects was undamaged.

If a vaccine is capable of causing observable myocarditis in one person, it seems reasonably likely that such toxicity will necessarily impact an indeterminate portion of others to some lesser degree, but in ways that are not as readily observable. It's not safe or logical, of course, to presume that zero heart damage is occurring among the legions of young men who do not end up in the hospital.

Once such extreme results like myocarditis are observed in large numbers (e.g., 1,200 generally healthy young men within a short period), it's knowingly reckless to not pause for testing to determine, at the very least, whether

Take a look at the third column to the right - deaths in people after ONE vaccine dose and 21 days. That's 17/3,865 = ~0.4%.

Getting a second dose in this sample - and it's a big sample - TRIPLED the risk of death compared to one dose.

That's not how it's supposed to work.

C'mon Alex. Not only do old people likely feel more obligation to get both doses, older people have been getting vaccines longer, and hence have a higher chance of having followed through.

CORONAVIRUS IN TEXAS

Texas students' standardized test scores dropped dramatically during the pandemic, especially in math

The drop was more significant in districts that had most of their instruction online, compared to districts with more in-person classes.

classes were held in person, the number of students who met math test expectations dropped by 32 percentage points, and the number of students who met reading expectations dropped by 9 percentage points compared to 2019, the last time the test was administered. In districts with more than three-quarters in-person instruction, the number of students meeting math expectations only dropped by 9 percentage points and those who met reading expectations by 1 percentage point. Students of color and lower-income students saw greater gaps as well, although those gaps were smaller than the one between remote and in-person instruction.

White House defends Gwen Berry, Olympian who turned back on US flag

"I haven't spoken to the president specifically about this, but I know he's incredibly proud to be an American and has great respect for the anthem and all that it represents, especially for our men and women serving in uniform all around the world," Psaki said at her daily press briefing.

Psaki added: "The way it also says, of course, that part of it is pride in our country means recognizing there are moments where we are — as a country, haven't lived up to our highest ideals. And it means respecting the rights of people granted to them in the Constitution to peacefully protest."

So the CFR for unvaccinated people over 50 was 38/976 = ~4%.

The CFR for fully vaccinated over 50 was 50/3546 = 1.4%.

Looks like the vaccine cuts deaths in infected people by ~2 in 3. (We don't have enough data from this chart to know how much it cuts infection risk.) BUT...

1/ For those too lazy for Substack (you bad people): this paper is stunning.

For anyone under 60, nearly the whole risk of death from #Covid appears obesity-related. And normal-weight people under 40 (not 20, 40!) have a death risk <>too low to measure...

2/ What's equally fascinating is that although people over 80 are at much higher risk overall, obesity doesn't appear to raise their risk (though there's a chance this finding is confounded by the fact that many people near-death tend to be thin)...

3/ But in younger people, the risk of obesity held EVEN AFTER the researchers adjusted for obesity-related conditions (even including diabetes). In other words, when it comes to , there's no such thing as a healthy fat person - adipose tissue itself seems to be the problem.

Here's @nyuniversity buying an apartment for a professor for $5.25 million - and structuring the deal in a particularly tricky way by selling the professor a fraction of the apartment.

I'm sure the Manhattan DA will be opening an investigation RIGHT NOW!

Solid evidence here that masks may actually be DANGEROUS to kids - they raised the level of inhaled carbon dioxide six-fold in a short trial of 45 children. Younger kids had higher levels.

CHILDREN SHOULD NEVER BE REQUIRED TO WEAR FACE DIAPERS.

The scientists suggest this as a mechanism of action:
"The dead-space volume of the masks... collects exhaled carbon dioxide quickly after a short time. This carbon dioxide mixes with fresh air and elevates the carbon dioxide content of inhaled air under the mask."

I don't say "if I were in charge" very often, but I'll say it now: if I were in charge all this crap would come down, at the Capitol and the White House too. Democracies that are this afraid of their own citizens don't survive.

Yeah, I'm becoming an extremist. An anti-@Facebook extremist. "Confidential help is available?" Who do they think they are?

Either they're a publisher and a political platform legally liable for every bit of content they host, or they need to STAY OUT OF THE WAY. Zuck's choice.

Yeah, I'm becoming an extremist. An anti-@Facebook extremist. "Confidential help is available?" Who do they think they are?

Either they're a publisher and a political platform legally liable for every bit of content they host, or they need to STAY OUT OF THE WAY. Zuck's choice.

Amazing email here from a @BankofAmerica employee. Normally I would ask him to prove it with credentials but I don't have to because the CEO blurted out the truth two weeks ago.

And the guy is right, no way can they fire or segregate 60% of their workers. Buh-bye quasi-mandate…

interesting nonetheless (I believe you will believe). For the last 5 months BofA has been touting the vaccine (like all the good members of Team Regime) they post a story every day pushing that you take it and set up an online portal for employees to record your vaccine status (and waive HIPAA rights) and everyday have stories published why we all need to do it. They have stated that you can go back to normal work arrangements if you take it, and if you don't you need special approval to visit clients or take on new assignments. Everything one step short of vax or else you will be fired.

After 5 months of this and not knowing whether resistance will be futile yesterday they sent an email firm wide announcing that a grand total of 38% of all employees- there are almost 200,000 employees of

It is surprisingly low. But even if the numbers were reversed (40% unvaccinated), there would be a lot of safety in numbers.

You know my feelings about cannabis but this is ridiculous and stupid and will only help the legalizers. This is the kind of petty stuff that gives people the impression that lots of people are still in jail for using cannabis, when the real number is approximately zero.

And here's Amtrak:

"Amtrak is communicating to employees that as of July 1 47.1% report receiving one or both doses.
Vaccination is not required but incentives include 4 hours of paid time... and of course messaging from the top has been to strongly encourage everyone."

Looks like outside of hospitals where employees are now sometimes being threatened with firing for refusing to comply, employee vaccinations are generally running in the 40-55% range.

Team Reality is berry berry big.

VAERS now has 211 reports listing post-vaccine heart inflammation leading to hospitalization or worse in kids 12-17.

211. Almost as many myocarditis teen hospitalizations as the US gets IN A YEAR normally.

Also, @CDCgov seems to have pulled its slides from the June 23 meeting.

I'm going to predict with 100 percent certainty that CDC would end VAERS or at least hide the actual reports from the public if it could. Wouldn't be surprised if some weaselly little rider is making its way through Congress right now to do just that

I've said it before: I've always been lucky in my enemies. All @chick_in_kiev did was accuse a Marine WHO LOST HIS LEGS IN AFGHANISTAN of having a Nazi tattoo. Just a small mistake, amirite?

And of course her main concern was not for him but herself.

Btw @nytimes then hired her!

Guess someone doesn't like to remember the time she said a double-amputee Marine veteran had a Nazi tattoo.

Did you ever apologize to Justin Gaertner personally and sincerely, Talia? 'Cause that would be nice. Would sure help your karma. Might even help with your panic attacks.

Nope. I am fully in favor of @facebook allowing completely unfettered speech (aside from illegal activities like child pornography). My position is simple, intellectually consistent, and in keeping with the First Amendment.

That's correct. If @facebook wants liability protection for the speech that it hosts - and it does, oh it does - then it doesn't get to regulate that speech any more than a phone company does. Really quite simple.

Now if @facebook is willing to accept legal responsibility for ALL the speech on its platform - if it wants to be a media company - it is welcome to control whatever it likes.

But it can only pick one side.

You are seeing the hundreds of young adults with myocarditis in VAERS? Adults in 20s and 30s were getting it for months before kids. Only the mRNA vaccines, not J&J. Check reports, some troponin levels (cardiac enzyme) 10x higher than typical heart attack!

The weeping and gnashing of teeth from Team @facebook over the simple and easily explained proposition that Facebook shouldn't be allowed to suppress posts it doesn't like if it wants lawsuit protection as a neutral host tells me how terrified FB is of this argument.

Turns out Uncle Joe is no fan of cannabis or drugs generally. It's almost like he has a close family member whose life has been wrecked by addiction.

I'd assumed full federal legalization was a foregone conclusion with the Dems running Congress but apparently not.

3/ But of course murders matter most, not just because they are the most serious of crimes, but because they're the one crime that is ~always reported. Which during a period when many stations were effectively closed to the public is a meaningful distinction.

1/ THIS IS NOT OKAY.

@cdcgov just posted its myocarditis/pericarditis update. They are now admitting that post-second dose risk in people under 25 could be over 200x the background rate (and that's not accounting for underreporting).

But the real news is even worse...

In January, the real-world early vaccine data looked terrible.

In May it looked much better.

Unfortunately, the pendulum is swinging again. We've had several very troubling signals in the last month, both for long-term efficacy and safety.

More to say about this this week...

BTW: I hope everyone understands my view. If the vaccines DON'T work as promised, that's even more reason to return to normal completely. The only conceivable reason not to let the epidemic run its natural course would be if we could trust the vaccines to end it permanently.

And if the GOP lets the '22 election be a referendum on Donald Trump, it will lose.

I know any Republican who is halfway honest about this will get primaried in two seconds. I don't have an answer. But pretending 65% of the country can't stand the guy (for good reason) isn't it.

An awful story. You rarely hear the pain of schizophrenia this publicly. It ruins lives, and not just of the people who suffer it.

And I don't know whether this case is cannabis-linked, but I know this - legalizing and encouraging use will lead to more cases and heartbreak.

> scott cunningham @causalinf
> My son has schizophrenia. It's a long story. I think I'd not fully accepted the diagnosis even until today. I blamed myself for everything that happened to him, including a major suicide attempt. That suicide attempt put him on two dialysis machines, ventilated, in a coma

This is the collateral damage (just part of the damage) of creating a commercial cannabis industry and anyone who tells you otherwise is lying. Whatever their motives, greed or personal interest or ideology, they're lying. The data are beyond dispute.

Funny story. Every week the UK releases a "technical briefing" on #Covid.

Report 15 came out June 11.
Report 16 came out June 18.
Report 17 came out June 25. It showed surprisingly high death rates among the vaccinated.

Report 18 was due July 2.

It seems to have gone missing!

1/ I'm puzzling as to why #Covid vaccine failure has hit the UK and Israel harder than the US.

One possibility: the UK used the @AstraZeneca DNA/AAV vaccine as well as the mRNAs. But Israel used only the @pfizer mRNA.

But what if the answer is preexisting immunity?

2/ The US third wave started earlier and harder than Israel's or the UK's, and the vaccines clearly produce higher titers in people who have natural immunity than in the uninfected. Could the US have enough natural + vax overlaps to make vaccine failure less obvious?

Let's be clear: the proper way to describe what is happening in the UK is "vaccine failure." The vaccines were not supposed to stop preventing infections after three months (especially since they ACCELERATE infections after dose 1), or because of minor, predictable mutations.

So @cdcgov is now recommending "intubation kits" at #Covid vaccine sites. Know why? Probably because the VAERS reports include many cases of anaphylactic shock following vaccinations so severe that intubation and ventilation was required.

Nothing to see here, folks.

In the wake of tonight's @tuckercarlson appearance I have heard from several more controllers and pilots - it seems clear masks are between a serious inconvenience and an actual hazard for pilot-to-ATC communication. Hopefully FAA will take note.

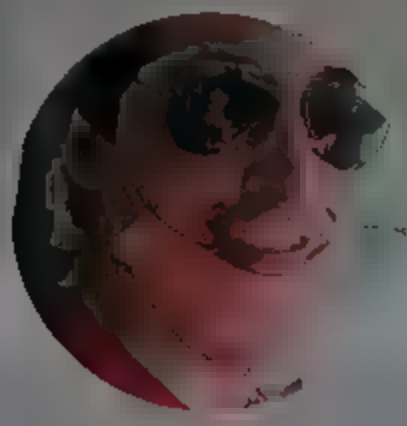
By lies he means data he doesn't like.

Know an actual lie? That 99% of #Covid deaths are in the unvaccinated. That figure excludes people who are not "fully vaccinated" and takes no account of the post first-dose spike, seasonality, or the vaccine failure already occurring.



Max Boot @MaxBoot
Talking on @CNN: "The reason why Republicans aren't getting vaccinated is because they're listening to this garbage, this misinformation and these lies that are being spread by sources like Fox News and many other influencers on the right."

So @cdcgov is lying again. Just like it lied when it said myocarditis wasn't a risk. The data from Britain (AND here) are clear. Many fully vaccinated people are becoming severely ill and dying.

To say flatly that vaccines protect against "severe disease and death" is a lie.

Thursday, July 8, 2021

Joint CDC and FDA Statement on Vaccine Boosters

The United States is fortunate to have highly effective vaccines that are widely available for those aged 12 and up. People who are fully vaccinated are protected from severe disease and death, including from the variants currently circulating in the country such as Delta. People who are not vaccinated remain at risk. Virtually all COVID-19 hospitalizations and deaths are among those who are unvaccinated. We encourage Americans who have not yet been vaccinated to get vaccinated as soon as possible to protect themselves and their community.

Americans who have been fully vaccinated do not need a booster shot at this time. FDA, CDC, and NIH are engaged in a science-based, rigorous process to consider whether or when a booster might be necessary. This process takes into account laboratory data, clinical trial data, and cohort data – which can include data from specific pharmaceutical companies, but does not rely on those data exclusively. We continue to review any new data as it becomes available and will keep the public informed. We are prepared for booster doses if and when the science demonstrates that they are needed.

British researchers found a #Covid survival rate of 99.995% in kids - 25 deaths during the entire epidemic out of ~470,000 cases.

But the real survival rate for kids who didn't have serious preexisting illnesses was EVEN HIGHER. Only six deaths were in previously healthy kids…

Remains Extremely Low, New Studies Find

The findings come from some of the most comprehensive research on the risks of the coronavirus for those 18 years and younger

…from COVID-19, according to some of the most comprehensive studies to date, which indicate the threat might be even lower than previously thought.

Some 99.995% of the 469,982 children in England who were infected during the year examined by researchers survived, one study found.

In fact, there were fewer deaths among children due to the virus than initially suspected. Among the 61 child deaths linked to a positive Covid-19 test in England, 25 were actually caused by the illness, the study Folks, Imma let you in on a lil secret: if you need two topups every four to six months, it ain't a vaccine. There are drugs dosed less often than that.

And no ordinary therapeutic with this side effect profile would have gotten an EUA - much less been pressed on every adult.

And now, four days later, there are 427.

There's a word for this kind of growth. Starts with an e, I wish I could remember it.

By the way, Scotland has among the highest vaccination rates in the world.

It's almost as if "despite" is the wrong preposition. And yes, I'm aware the Israel headline is from January and cases and deaths have fallen since. Does that mean we don't count them? (Not a rhetorical question, vaccine companies and the media say we shouldn't.)

Hey, if you're Hispanic or African-American, is a "lack of knowledge" keeping you from being vaccinated?

The people trying to get you to take the jab think so. They even said so publicly! Such refreshing honesty, amirite?

Btw, they say nothing of the sort about conservatives.

Remember how you didn't have to worry about the #Covid explosion in the UK because the vaccines would ensure nobody got sick? Scotland just had over 100 daily hospital admissions, first time since February.

You can tell your grandkids you saw the great vaccine failure of 2021.

I don't like categorical predictions since #Covid makes fools of categorical predications, but the only reason to think the US will not follow Israel and the UK down the path of vaccine failure in the next few weeks is that natural immunity might be higher here.

A reminder: area under the curve is what matters for efficacy. Judging vaccines on two good months (or two bad weeks post-first dose) is a mistake. We are nowhere near knowing how well and how long these work.

Which is why they shouldn't be mandated.

That, and the side effects.

More on Scotland: a reader correctly notes that in the last week of June, fully vaccinated people accounted for the majority of Scots who died from #Covid (and more fully vaccinated people died than had died in the previous six months combined).

[2] Scotland/Covid-19
Statistical Report

That means 13 deaths of fully vaccinated individuals from 24th June to 1st July.
There were 22 deaths reported within 28 days of a +ve test in that period.
59% of deaths were fully vaccinated in that short period. In fairness, we have to recognise that nigh on 100% of over 65s are fully vaccinated.
The reports don't tell us how many

1/ Sorry, Peter, wrong again. I'm not #Covid vaccinated. Why would I take an experimental vaccine with an unknown duration of efficacy for a virus that is a tiny risk to me?

The insistence I'm vaccinated says so much more about my critics than me. They think this is all a game…

3/ Two, this is still almost all first dose and the side effects are far worse after the second dose. (And as the Israeli experience shows, there's not much point to one dose - it doesn't provide adequate protection.)

And finally this is still mostly Pfizer: Moderna is worse.

To give you a sense of how abnormal the discussion of #Covid vaccine boosters is, here's the @cdcgov vaccine schedule for adults. The only vaccine healthy adults are supposed to get more than once a decade is the flu shot (which has ~zero side effects compared to Covid vaccines).

Added bonus: turns out the flu vaccine basically doesn't work in older people. (This is a giant UK study from last year.)

"No evidence indicated that vaccination reduced hospitalizations or mortality among elderly persons."

But that's another story.

Deaths and serious cases are rising, but they probably will remain below previous spikes. Several possible reasons:

1) The Delta variant is more contagious, less dangerous.
2) The case mix has more young people.
3) The vaccines offer partial protection.
4) Improved treatments.

Sorting out these factors is VERY complicated. The problem is that public health experts have proven we cannot trust them to give an honest analysis. They will just credit the vaccines, no matter what.

I've hoped against hope the reason the #Covid shots haven't been approved yet is that somewhere in the bowels of @us_fda a reviewer wants @pfizer @moderna_tx to do some of the work missing from the EUA application.

But if St. Fauci says approval is coming, it probably is.

For all my stats lovers: more proof that state vaccination rates have zip zero zilch to do with trends in Covid deaths. This looks at changes in deaths by state in 2020 v 2021 vs. vaccination levels. An R-squared of zero and a P-value of 0.95 translate into complete randomness.

and compared to weeks 24-27 (roughly June) within each year, then compared 2021 vs. 2020. I plot the y-axis as % Seasonal Impact 2021 - % Seasonal Impact 2020. An example:

- Wisconsin
  - 2020 Wk 15-18 Deaths: 278
  - 2020 Wk 24-27 Deaths: 158
  - Seasonal Impact 2020: -43%
  - 2021 Wk 15-18 Deaths: 228
  - 2020 Wk 24-27 Deaths: 183
  - Seasonal Impact 2020: -20%

I would then plot WI as a -20% - (-43%) = 23%

Some additional notes:

I couldn't disagree more with this.

The vaccines are the furthest thing from a miracle. They come from human minds and human hands, human ingenuity and human greed. They exist by us and for us. If their benefits outweigh their risks, great. If not they belong in the trash.

What happens if it's determined that the risk of administering vaccines to those younger than 6 (pick an age) is too great? Will kids then be forced to mask indefinitely?

He knows the trials will be positive. The low clinical bar makes it 100% guaranteed. So the masks are meant to keep up an illusion of risk in this age group till the vaccines come.

They didn't.
Lockdowns didn't.
Closing schools didn't.

Remdesivir didn't.
Masks didn't.
Contact tracing didn't.
And these vaccines won't, not if they're failing months in.

A month ago this could have been called optimistic. Now it's counterfactual.
I hate to pick on James, because he's far from alone. All these supposedly informed bluechecks never look at the raw data and have no idea what it says, so they blather nonsense with complete confidence.

For all my stats lovers: more proof that state vaccination rates have zip zero zilch to do with trends in Covid deaths. This looks at changes in deaths by state in 2020 v 2021 vs. vaccination levels. An R-squared of zero and a P-value of 0.95 translate into complete randomness.

and compared to weeks 24-27 (roughly June) within each year, then compared 2021 vs. 2020. I plot the y-axis as % Seasonal Impact 2021 - % Seasonal Impact 2020. An example:

- Wisconsin
  - 2020 Wk 15-18 Deaths: 278
  - 2020 Wk 24-27 Deaths: 158
  - Seasonal Impact 2020: -43%
  - 2021 Wk 15-18 Deaths: 228
  - 2020 Wk 24-27 Deaths: 183
  - Seasonal Impact 2020: -20%

I would then plot WI as a -20% - (-43%) = 23%

Some additional notes:

I couldn't disagree more with this.

The vaccines are the furthest thing from a miracle. They come from human minds and human hands, human ingenuity and human greed. They exist by us and for us. If their benefits outweigh their risks, great. If not they belong in the trash.

This Israeli paper looks at 34 deaths in 152 vaccinated patients. No surprise, they were old and very sick and died at rates similar to the unvaccinated.

More evidence the vaccines work except in people who really need them; as they fail deaths will increase in those folks.

The speed at which the vaccines are failing is astonishing. The UK, the most vaccinated major country in the world, reported 42,000 cases today - almost 100x (yes, 100 times!) as many as the same day in 2020. And hospitalizations and deaths are unfortunately beginning to soar.

COVID-19: UK daily coronavirus cases exceed 40,000 - highest since mid-January

The number of daily coronavirus infections is the highest for six months, as 49 more people have died within 28 days of a positive COVID test.

Wednesday 14 July 2021 18:35, UK coronavirus cases and 49 more deaths in the latest 24-hour period, government data shows.

It is the highest number of daily infections since 15 January when 55,761 cases were recorded.

And it is the eighth day in a row where total cases have exceeded 30,000.

The latest figures compare with 36,660 COVID-19 infections and 50 deaths recorded yesterday, and 32,548 cases

At best - AT BEST - even the mRNA vaccines now seem to provide a few months of immunity, at the cost of increased infections after the first dose and a nasty side effect profile. The theory they cut deaths and serious infections more than overall infections is purely speculative.

At best - AT BEST - they reduce infections at PEAK effectiveness by about the same amount as naturally generated post-infection immunity (we have real data on this), but we have no evidence vaccine immunity lasts as long.
